PICKFORD ACCUSED OF DIVORCE FRAUD

Fairbanks Also Named as Party to "Conspiracy"; Charge Woman With Perjury

Carson, Nev., April 17.—The sensational circumstances surrounding the divorce secured by Mary Pickford from Owen Moore in the District Court at Minden six weeks ago, and her subsequent marriage to Douglas Fairbanks at Los Angeles, together with the charges of fraud collusion and perjury which immediately followed, and have been agitated ever since, all crystallized in the filing of a suit to secure annulment of the decree of divorce.

The action, brought on behalf of the State of Nevada by Attorney-General Leonard B. Fowler, was recorded in the court at Minden. Douglas County, the tribunal before which the little moving picture actress had appeared to obtain her separation from Owen Moore. The complaint contains more than fifty typewritten pages.

Bearing out in every particular the forecast carried exclusively by Universal Service, allegation is made of a "fraudulent plan, scheme and undertaking" connected by Gladys M. Moore (Mary Pickford), Owen Moore and Douglas Fairbanks to defeat the laws of both California and Nevada in their desire to annul the marriage of the Moores and facilitate the wedding of Mary Pickford and

Hoover "Foreigner," Declares Pinchot

New York, April 17.—Gifford Pinchot, in a statement giving his reasons for resigning from the food administration bureau, charged that Herbert C. Hoover is essentially a foreigner and therefore is "neither a real Republican nor a real American."

Hoover, he declares, is as "autocratic as President Wilson himself." His sympathies are with big business and the middleman as against both the producer and the consumer.

Pinchot further asserted that Hoover was opposed to the farmer, and he (Pinchot) had heard him abuse the farmer.

THREE ARRESTED AS 'BURGLARS'

Police Find $506 in Money and Forty Suits of Clothing in Bands' Possession

Three men believed by the police to be professional burglars just returned from a raid, were arrested in a room at No. 61 Myrtle street, West End, as suspicious persons.

In the room were forty suits of clothes and the most complete kit of burglars' tools the police have seen in months. Search of the suspects revealed $506 in cash.

The men gave the names of Jacob Goldberg, twenty-four, of Eastern avenue, Malden; Charles Grossman, twenty-three, Kennard avenue, and Morris Friedman, nineteen, Wall street, West End.

Some of the clothing found bore a New Haven mark, but no tailor's name. The police sent out telegrams to various Connecticut and Rhode Island towns inquiring whether any break was reported.

The arrests resulted from the suspicions of a passing pedestrian who saw the men draw up in front of the Myrtle street address in a seven-passenger car. They began carrying bundles into the house. The pedestrian informed Traffic Officer Brackett, who reported to Police Captain Fitzgerald of the city street station. Sergeant William Livingstone made the arrests and conducted the search. The clothing had recently been unpacked, according to the police. The burglar's kit consisted of rubber gloves, a Scotch drill, glass cutters, revolvers, brass knuckles, belts, caps and the sort of sheet used by crackmen.

GET CLEW TO DEATH BAND

South Braintree Murders and Bridgewater Hold-ups Laid to Same Gang

State and private detectives today sought the Braintree auto bandits in Providence. Evidence has been discovered which points toward that city as the hiding place of the murder band.

Furthermore, almost positive proof has been found that the men who committed the crime on Thursday were also members of the band which attempted the G. V. White holdup in Bridgewater about two months ago. State Detectives Sherlock and Boullard, working with Pinkerton operatives, are pursuing this clew.

While there is an impression that the identity of at least one of the members of the band is known, the authorities are by no means optimistic of an immediate arrest. That the men have a rendezvous in Providence, however, seems certain.

The attempt to steal the $40,000 payroll of the White company was made on the day before Christmas. It was made on Broad street, the principal thoroughfare of the town. The paymaster of the company was riding from the bank to the factory accompanied by Patrolman Bowles of the Bridgewater police department.

Suddenly three men with rifles in their hands stepped into the roadway

BULLETINS

LONDON.—Thomas Mulholland, a Sinn Fein leader, has been killed at Dundalk, says a dispatch from Dublin.

LONDON.—A report that Poland has sent an ultimatum to Germany, and is threatening to send troops into German territory, was discredited today by Polish officials.

TOKIO.—The two English newspapers printed at Vladivostok have been suppressed by the Japanese military authorities.

PARIS.—France and Belgium are prepared to maintain a big army on the Rhine, even if both the British and American armies are withdrawn, General Castelnau says.

CONSTANTINOPLE.—Mustapha Kemal Pasha, leader of the Turkish Nationalists in Anatolia, has ordered the deportation of all foreigners and Christians from the new Soviet republic of Angora.

CONSTANTINOPLE. — Fresh massacres are reported from Armenia. Peasants in the Karabagh and Zngezur districts, on the Turco-Persian frontier, have revolted.

BERLIN.—An inquiry is under way into the activities of three officers of the Reichswehr, on the charge of plotting for a Nationalist-Bolshevist anti-government movement.

AMSTERDAM. — The court at Stuttgart has granted the ex-Kaiser an injunction restraining the Cotta Publishing Company from printing the former Emperor's personal letters to Bismarck in the third volume of Bismarck's memoirs shortly to be brought out.

PARIS.—Cavalry patrols are on duty at Versailles, as the result of a demonstration by soldiers of the class of 1918, who protest because they are not demobilized.

WALK OUT IN BIG MILLS

New Bedford and Lawrence Troubles May Force 30,000 Workers Into Idleness

Textile industries of New Bedford and Lawrence were seriously menaced today, when 800 loomfixers walked out in the first named city, and a wage increase demand was made by the mill operatives in the other.

Fifteen of the twenty weaving mills in New England were affected by today's walkout, which it is feared will result in the shutting down of these places Monday, forcing 30,000 persons into idleness.

In the remaining New Bedford mills the agents were conferring with representatives of the Loom Fixers' Union, who object to notices recently posted, announcing a reduction of the number of fixers.

The Allied Council of Loom Fixers is scheduled to meet in Fall River to officially endorse the walkout at New Bedford.

This council represents loom fixers of New Bedford, Fall River, Salem, Taunton and Lawrence.

It was stated that if the strike develops, additional demands will be made by the loom fixers for a flat $40 wage.

The New Bedford trouble was caused by the posting of notices in a majority of the mills, stating that the number of loom fixers would be reduced, and that those remaining would be forced to care for more looms. At the Dartmouth mill, where the fixers have been on strike for five weeks, as a result of the posting of the first of these notices, 3,500 of the 5,000 looms have been stopped.

It was said that if the fixers walk out it would mean that the weavers would not continue to work for a day or two, after which time they would be idle. As the weavers constitute the majority of operatives, shutdowns would result.

The Lawrence mill officials received a demand for a 50 per cent. wages increase, effective May 3. This demand was contained in a letter signed by John P. Henry, president of the Lawrence Textile Council. According to Henry, the council represents 15,000 operatives, all of whom are affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

HOLYOKE PASTOR ARRESTED BY TURKS

Holyoke, April 17.—Dr. Lorina Shepard, an American missionary sent to Turkey last June by the Second Congregational Church of this city, has been arrested by the Turks, according to information received by officers of the church today. They ordered appeals to Senator Lodge and Congressman Treadway to take the matter up with the State Department.

It is reported that Dr. Shepard was arrested April 8 for refusing to lower the American flag when requested to do so by Turkish authorities.

IRELAND AND SECESSION

AN ANSWER TO LLOYD GEORGE.

By THOMAS H. MAHONY.

LLOYD GEORGE ON "SECESSION"

"I think it right to say that any attempt at secession will be fought with the same determination, the same resources, the same resolve as the Northern States put into the fight against the Southern States."

(Lloyd George, on the Outline of 4th Home Rule Bill.)

"De Valera is in exactly the same position as Jefferson Davis before the American Civil War. If he insists, it will lead exactly to the same methods of oppression as the Northern States of America used to avoid secession."

(Lloyd George, House of Commons—March 31, 1920.)

Before the English government ventured to propose the Union, it offered a £10 bounty to every Irish soldier who would enlist for foreign service. Ten regiments so enlisted were shipped abroad and replaced by English regiments; though England was engaged in a bitter continental struggle, Ireland was held by 130,000 armed men. (Castelreagh, Corresp. III., 210, 211.) (Sir Isaac Butt, Nov. 18, 1873.)

The Act of Union was attempted while "our country is (was) filled with British troops . . . whilst the Habeas Corpus Act is (was) suspended—whilst trials by court-martial are (were) carrying on in many parts of the kingdom—whilst the people are (were) taught to think they have (had) no right to meet or deliberate." (Lord Plunkett—Irish Parliament, 1800.)

Whether there was coercion or not is shown by the following table:

BEGIN BIG RUSH OF FREIGHT

All Embargoes Lifted, Men Returning to Jobs; Still Short of Fuel

New York, April 17.—The "outlaw" railroad strike virtually came to an end today on eastern railroads with the return to work of the strikers in overwhelming numbers.

Freight began to move early today in volume for the first time in ten days. Embargoes were lifted, restrictions were removed and before nightfall railroad managers said practically normal conditions would be restored on nearly all principal carriers.

Warning that the public must expect to suffer inconveniences for the next few days was given by the railroads, however. The final shortage brought about by the tie-up of coal movements in the East for the last week cannot be overcome at once, it was stated.

All strikers who returned to work today did so under the ultimatum of the railroad managers, which expires tomorrow at noon, and on the orders

HUNT FOR MORE 'STOLEN' LIQUOR

Glynn Brothers Held in $2,500 Each for a Hearing April 28

Federal agents were reported to be searching in a textile city near Boston for five barrels of the forty-two barrels of liquor reported "stolen" from the Brighton storehouse of Michael H. Glynn. It was said that the federal agents were on the trail and expected to make another successful raid.

The owner of the liquor and his brother, John Glynn of Strathmore road, Brighton, appeared before United States Commissioner Hayes in the Federal Building charged with "conspiracy with intent to commit an offence against the United States government."

The Glynn brothers were each held in $2,500 bail for a hearing April 28. They waived their ending of the complaint and pleaded not guilty. In addition to charges of conspiracy against the United States government, they were charged with illegal transportation and sale of liquor. Attorney E. Mark Sullivan, former assistant United States district attorney, was counsel for the defendants. Federal Prohibition Enforcement Agent William McCarthy was complainant.

The federal agents heard that the liquor was removed from the Brighton storehouse on the night of April 8 and 7, instead of last Sunday night or Monday morning as originally reported to the police.

McNARY'S AUTO TURNS TURTLE

His Son and Another Are Injured as Car Skids on Riverway

Three persons escaped serious injury when an automobile owned by William S. McNary of No. 84 College road, Newton, skidded and turned turtle along the Riverway, near Brookline avenue, Brookline, early today.

Two received minor cuts, the third, Neal F. Doherty, Jr., twenty, of No. 28 Ridgemont street, Brighton, was uninjured. Owen G. Kendrick, twenty-two, single, of No. 9 Bradbury street, Brookline, was treated at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital for dislocated collar bone and minor cuts.

William S. McNary, Jr., was taken to the City Hospital to be treated for contusions and abrasions of the body.

"REGGIE" VANDERBILT'S WIFE GETS DECREE

Newport, R. I., April 17.—Mrs. Cathleen Neilson Vanderbilt, former wife of Reginald C. Vanderbilt, has been granted her final decree in the Superior Court. The divorce petition was filed on the grounds of willful desertion for more than five years. The child, Cathleen Vanderbilt, is given to the mother for custody with a provision that both father and mother shall supervise her education and general training during her minority.

Hope to Hear From Mars Next Week

Omaha, Neb., April 17.—Two serious attempts to communicate with the planet Mars, both with the sanction of the United States government, will be made from Fort Omaha next week.

Both are to be made by means of the wireless, one of them from a balloon, the week of April 11 being chosen because Mars is closer to the earth during that period.

Professor David Todd, head of the Astronomical Department at Amherst College, who has completed his instruments after five years of preparation, will make his attempt from a balloon piloted by Captain Leo Stevens, chief instructor in balloonning in the United States Army.

The other attempt to communicate with the Martians will be made by Dr. Frederick H. Millener of Fort Omaha, wireless telephone expert.

Dr. Millener will confine his experiment to "listening in," and for this purpose has installed a wireless receiving set with a wave length of 20,000 meters.

Captain Stevens will endeavor to take Professor Todd to such a great height that there will be practically no interference from the earth or air. Captain Stevens' new balloon is so constructed that the expanding oxygen will drive out only air, leaving the lifting power intact. He hopes to reach an altitude of not less than 30,000 feet.

The balloon flight is scheduled to start Friday, April 23, and Colonel Jacob Wuest, commanding officer at Fort Omaha, will be one of the party. Dr. Millener's experiments will start on Monday, April 19, and continue throughout the week.

MAKES $1,000,000 IN SPECULATION IN RYE

Chicago, April 17. — Another big grain coup has been credited to George A. Roberts of Omaha, Neb., who put through a deal in corn a year ago that made him $2,500,000. According to Board of Trade reports today he netted $1,000,000 as the result of speculation in rye, buying at $1.46 a bushel last January and unloading it recently on a $2 market.

of their strike leaders on the Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio, Long Island, Erie, Lackawana and other roads entering Jersey City and New York.

By returning today they escaped disciplinary measures and loss of seniority and other rights.

New Haven Plans Big Cut in Passenger Service

With three plants forced to close their doors as a result of the fuel famine, the New Haven road announced today that it will effect a drastic cut in passenger train service Monday which will be a substantial amount of fuel arrives in this State.

There is little chance of relief, according to the railroad, as the fuel gateways, Maybrook and Harlem River, have been effectually shut by the "holding" strike of railroad employes.

The plants forced to close as result of their inability to get coal include the Diamond F and Diamond M factories of the H. D. Corbin & Sons shoe concern at Marlboro and the Hoosac Worsted Company mills at South Adams.

The situation on the Boston & Albany is much improved. Two hundred cars of bituminous coal, which had officials had asked to protect it, will speed the shortage. Some have been released and are now en route to consumers in dire need of the fuel.

Advances in the price of meats are charged by men in touch with railroad conditions are unwarranted and the work of profiteers. Both the B. & M. and the B. & A. report generous westward movements of freight, many of the cars being stocked with food. Officials declare they cannot explain how the railroad strike can be given as the reason for advances in food prices.

Boston wholesale market dealers declare they are beginning to feel the effects of the strike. They state that beef of the best quality is short and hence prices are high. Buyers reported having completed a bid high to obtain Maine potato stocks.

Outlaw Rail Strikes Seem Near to End

Washington, April 17.—Unauthorized railroad walkouts which have held the nation in their grip for more than a week are in a fair way to settlement today, according to the reports reaching the Department of Justice. Reports indicate that throughout the East a majority of the strikers are preparing to return to work. Efforts of the department to check the work of agitators will not cease, it was stated.

According to a report on the entire strike situation received by Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, the agitators came into the strike only after it was well started. Morrison declared that he had evidence to show that "the Reds" are not the moving factor in the strike situation.

The Railroad Labor Board met again today to take up its work of adjusting railroad wages.

Grunau and Other "Outlaw" Leaders Optimistic

Chicago, April 17.—Railroad officials and Brotherhood chiefs here confidently expect a complete ending of the switchmen's strike in the Chicago district within the next thirty hours, they declared today.

This optimistic note followed on the action by the Federal authorities in arresting six strike leaders and breaking up a meeting of John Grunau and other strike leaders.

The latter appeared quite optimistic concerning a settlement of the strike for the first time since the walkout began. Their change of front came after they were released from Federal detention on their own recognizance, following their refusal to give bail.

The strikers will hold a mass meeting and it is possible that action which will result in their return to work will be taken.

ERIE-ONTARIO SHIP CHANNEL OPPOSED

Washington, April 17.—Construction of the Lake Erie-Lake Ontario ship or ship channel is not advisable at this time either from a military or commercial standpoint, according to a report submitted today to the House Rivers and Harbors committee by the Army Engineer Board in charge of rivers and harbors improvements.

BELGIAN TROOPS ENTER FRANKFORT

Berlin, April 17.—Belgian troops are now assisting the French in patrolling the streets of Frankfort, says a dispatch from that city. The Belgians entered Frankfort Thursday, though only in nominal strength, the chief purpose being to demonstrate Belgium's co-operation with France in the latter's German policy.

OREGON NAMES LODGE FOR VICE-PRESIDENT

Salem, Ore., April 17.—Papers have been filed with the Secretary of State naming Henry Cabot Lodge, United States Senator from Massachusetts, as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Vice-President of the United States.

BIG BURGLARY HATCHING!

BONUS BILL HELD UP 2 WEEKS

Treasury Experts Drafting Bill Cannot Finish Work Until Late Next Week

Washington, April 17.—Delay of two or three weeks in passage by the House of soldier aid legislation may result from the situation which has developed in the Ways and Means Committee.

Treasury experts, who are drafting the language of the proposed sales tax provision of the bill cannot complete their work until late next week, it is said, and two of the sub-committees are yet to report. When the the treasury experts and the sub-committees make final report to the full committee must whip the entire composite plan into shape in the form of a bill which will require several days.

Chairman Fordney has personal matters which will call him away for some time after April 15 and no action will be made to call up the measure during his absence. It appears likely, therefore, that it will be at least two weeks before the matter can be taken up in the House, although Chairman Fordney is intent upon having the legislation before the House and acted upon before the end of next week.

Estimates submitted to the committee by the Treasury experts, who have been working on the sales tax plan, show that the proposed tax of one-half of one per cent. on "turnover" sales will produce revenue slightly in excess of $1,000,000. Opponents of this method of taxation to raise the money for soldier bonuses declared the one-half of one per cent. tax, when it reaches the ultimate consumer will have been pyramided far beyond that figure.

This phase of the problem is giving serious concern to the Republican members of the committee. Letters protesting against the proposed tax already are coming in, and the Democrats are renewing their fight for a retroactive tax on "millionaires' war profits."

SNEAK THIEVES GET CHELSEA WOMAN'S JEWELS

Mrs. Rose Doramajian of No. 329 Spruce street, Chelsea, reported to the police that her flat was entered, a drawer of a dresser was opened, four gold rings, two gold watches, two bracelets, two watch chains and a string of gold beads were taken, all to the value of $475. Entrance was gained by false keys and the flat was ransacked.

30 GALLONS OF "GAS" STOLEN IN ARLINGTON

The Arlington police are investigating the theft of gasoline from the tank at the residence of H. Bradford, at No. 58 Old Mystic street, that town. Mr. Spaulding reported to the police that the chain on his gasoline tank had been broken and thirty gallons of gasoline stolen.

COOLIDGE SIGNS HUB BORROWING MEASURE

Governor Coolidge has signed the bill authorizing the city of Boston to borrow $1,000,000 outside the city debt limit for the purpose of improving the East Boston ferry service, which has been in bad shape. It is understood that the city plans the purchase of two new ferryboats with the money raised.

RECOVER 3,600 POUNDS OF SUGAR FROM THIEF

New York, April 17.—Harbor police have recovered 3,600 pounds of stolen sugar after a fifteen-minute revolver battle with sugar pirates in the Erie Basin. All but one of the robbers escaped. The prisoner, said to be Cornelius Merrill of Kingston, N. Y., refused to talk.

Dares City Officials to Wear Overalls

Providence April 17.—City government officials are dared by Alderman Jeremiah E. O'Connell, a dapper member of the bar, to wear overalls and dungarees in an effort to decrease the high cost of living.

"It is the only way to beat this increasing cost of living and hold profiteering which will mean disaster, if not curbed," said "Jerry" while the well groomed city officials looked on with a smile. Alderman O'Connell told the gathering he would be the first to don overalls and would ask a step further and shed coat clothes and promise not to buy any more clothes until prices took a tumble.

It is understood that a city hall organization is seriously considering the question and may appear shortly garbed in old clothes and caps. If this is so, really the alderman says he will stick to his proposition to the city government.

G. O. P. IS SPLIT ON CHAIRMAN

Progressives Name Borah to Fight Lodge for Temporary Leader of Convention

Washington, April 17.—The fight between the progressive element in the Republican party and the "Old Guard," or reactionary crowd, for control of the Chicago convention is on.

It was started with the announcement here by Progressive leaders in Congress that they will propose Borah for the temporary chairmanship of the convention.

The decision to get behind Senator Borah was reached after it had been semi-officially announced that the committee on arrangements of the Republican National committee would select Senator Henry Cabot Lodge for the temporary chairmanship at the meeting which is to be held in Chicago on May 16.

The progressives immediately reached the decision that they ought to have something to say about who was going to preside over the convention and urged Senator Borah to permit his name to be used.

If the fight for temporary chairmanship should fail, an attempt will be made to land the permanent chairmanship for Senator Borah. It already has been announced by the "Old Guard" managers that the keynote speech will be delivered by Senator Lodge. If Lodge should be seated as temporary chairman and Borah as the permanent presiding officer, it may happen that there will be two "keynote" speeches, and the party can take its choice.

COLLECT MILLION IN EXCESS WOOL PROFITS

Local wool merchants will be interested in dispatches from Washington to the effect that more than $1,000,000 excess profits obtained by wool dealers in transactions during the war-time supervision of the wool industry by the government, will be collected by the Bureau of Markets of the Department of Agriculture and returned to the growers. This decision was made after hearings had been conducted by the bureau on complaints from growers in Texas. The work of collecting and returning the excess profits will be pushed vigorously, according to Secretary Meredith.

Whip Makers Strike

Westfield, April 17.—Several whip manufacturing employes here have struck for an increased wage of 60 cents a day. The men are now receiving $2.75 a day.

500 WOMEN GOING TO MISSION MEETING

The Woman's Board of Home Missions of the Presbyterian Church will hold its biennial meeting in the Tenth Presbyterian church of Philadelphia, May 19, 20, 21 and 23. Nearly 500 women are expected to attend. The chief topic will be the education campaign carried on by 500 workers in seventy-two stations among the Indians, Mexicans, Mormons, mountaineers, Cubans, Porto Ricans and Alaskans. Dr. John Willis Baer of Pasadena, California, will speak.

SERIES OF LECTURES ON CITIZENSHIP

Mrs. Claude U. Gilson, special lecturer for the citizenship committee of the Massachusetts Civic League, Inc., Boston, will open a course of lectures at the Brookline Public Library next Tuesday evening. Mrs. Wenona O. Pinkham will discuss the physical education bill, recently advocated by the Governor's committee, and Means Committee, at 10:45 a. m. on Tuesday.

"INDIAN SPRING" NOW "WRENTHAM HOUSE"

Newport, R. I., April 17.—Indian Spring" is a name long synonymous with a Newport villa, is no more, for Mr. and Mrs. J. Francis A. Clark, the new owners, announce the change in name to "Wrentham House." Mr. and Mrs. Clark purchased the estate last Fall from Miss Margaret H. Rush. It is situated on the Ocean Drive in the Price's Neck district.

SPRINGFIELD GETS PLENTY OF FOOD

Springfield, April 17.—Danger of a serious food shortage here passed today with the arrival of thirty-eight carloads of beef and foodstuffs from the West. Coal also is coming in. None of the switchmen in local yards went out on strike.

and levelled them at the machine. Bowles drew his revolver and at once opened fire on the men. They fled in haste and turned an automobile in which they were driven away.

ARMED WITH RIFLES.

The Pinkerton operatives have established almost conclusively that the machine used in the Bridgewater attempt was the same as that used in the Braintree job. Furthermore, there is good reason for believing that the men who engineered the job are the same.

While it seems almost certain that the actual killing and robbing is done by gangsters there persists a belief that somebody in the heart of the shoemaking industry is at the bottom of the crimes. In both the White and Braintree jobs the holdup men had an intimate knowledge of the movements of the company officials.

In the first instance, the men were waiting at just the proper place for the approach of the paymaster with the money. In the Braintree job the bandits had been so disposed as to render impossible a slip in their plans.

That a woman was not also in the Braintree job is providential. On every pay day prior to Thursday Miss Margaret Mahoney, an office employe, has accompanied the paymaster on his rounds. Miss Mahoney did not accompany Paymaster and his companion Thursday.

LOOKS FOR WITNESSES.

In Braintree, Chief of Police Jerepsio Galivan is continuing his inquiry in the hope of securing witnesses who might assist in making positive identification. If any such be found they will be taken to Providence to aid in the hunt.

Chief Clerk and Elmer Poole, employees of a Brockton bakery, furnished evidence which tended to support the theory that the men had fled into Providence. Twenty minutes after the holdup an auto bearing the same numbers which were seen on the death car raced by them in the Taunton road, passing in their wake Chief of North Stoughton. Following this road they had a direct gateway into Rhode Island and Providence.

Detectives who worked on the attempted robbery of the White plant were never able to secure information that would aid them in their search for the bandits. They did, however, have a good description of the machine that was used in their flight.

A coincidence in connection with that case is the fact that the numbers on the bandits' car were identical to those stolen in Needham, as were the numbers on the machine used in the Braintree job. It is now believed, however, that the latter was an entirely different set.

The police are attempting to connect the two cases with the operations of a band of known automobile thieves. If they be successful a rapid solution of the two cases will be had.

It is not believed that there is any connection between the slayers of Paymaster Parmenter and Berardelli and the men who held up the Randolph Savings Bank.

The witnesses were examined at the inquest held by Judge Avery of the Milton district court. The examination of witnesses was by Assistant District Attorney George E. Adams of Quincy.

JAPAN AND CHINA IN HARVARD FUND

An interesting contest between the alumni in Japan and China for additions in the Harvard Endowment Fund campaign has developed since the graduates in the Far East received Boston papers of January 29 containing newspaper reports from those countries. China had a long lead on Japan up to April 1, but the latter country has come forward in more than $13,000 in subscriptions and Junior Secretary Thomas Lamont for more subscriptions were received from China, cutting down Japan's lead to $1,000. The total for the two country now has eighteen Harvard men overseas, but there are 121 of the alumni in China and two less in Japan.

The fund totals to date announced are Boston, $4,720,576; New York, $4,-[illegible] outside, $3,305,650; total, $12,122,797.

BARS CARRANZA FROM TEXAS

Austin, Texas, April 17.—Governor W. P. Hobby will refuse Mexican Federal troops permission to pass through Texas to points on the Mexican state of Sonora, there to give battle to the secessionists, no matter what attitude the government in Washington may take.

This announcement was made here semi-officially in advance of the request known to be coming from Carranza that the Governor allow the troops to cross Texas soil on the Lone Star State.

The contention of Governor Hobby that the Mexican troops, by detraining at Juarez, the terminal of the Mexican Central railroad, would have a short distance overland to march before they could again entrain at a railroad, and that, therefore, there is no real necessity for them to cross a portion of this state.

HOOVER BACKERS AT SIMMONS TO MARCH

Simmons College girls, members of the Hoover Club, organized to support Herbert Hoover for the nomination for President, will parade Wednesday noon in the Fenway. Thursday they will hold Republican primaries and choose one of three candidates, Hoover, Johnson or Wood. Already 150 students have enrolled as favoring Hoover's candidacy. The college economics department of the college recorded itself as unanimous for Hoover.

Movies Aid Red Cross

Concord, April 17.—The Concord Chapter of the American Red Cross gave a motion picture show in the Concord State Armory, this afternoon. The show will be repeated this evening. It is for the benefit of the work of the Red Cross.

FAIRBANKS NOW ACCUSED

Attorney-General Charges Collusion to Break Marriage to Thwart Laws of California

Douglas Fairbanks pursuant to a prearranged contract.

The interweaving of Fairbanks in the alleged fraud, as well as the importance attached by the alleged fraudulent evasion of the laws of California, constitute novel features in this suit, the first of its kind, so far as divorce is concerned, to be brought in any court in the United States.

AGREED TO GET MARRIED.

In a nutshell, the charge made by the State of Nevada through the Attorney-General, is that Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks had agreed to get married as soon as she could get rid of Owen Moore; that the irksome provision made by California was an interlocutory decree of one year's period was not to their liking; that the scheme was therefore arranged to have Mary Pickford come to Nevada, and likewise bring Owen Moore into the State just long enough to be served with a summons.

It is alleged that the plan was to make it appear, by Mary Pickford's subsequent testimony, that Moore's presence was the result of legitimate and lawful purposes; that in this way a decree of divorce could be obtained practically over night, and could be followed at once by the marriage of Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks in California.

CHARGES WILFUL FRAUD.

In the amplification of this subsidiary charge in the complaint Attorney-General Fowler makes charges of wilful fraud and collusion, as well as of perjury, against the defendants, declaring that they imposed upon the Court and induced it, through ignorance of the facts to grant the decree.

Shorn of the profuse verbiage and almost endless repetition necessitated to spread the action from successful attack, the complaint sets forth the following facts:

That the defendants, Gladys Moore and Owen Moore, were married June 9, 1915, in Denver, Colo., and that at the time of the filing of this complaint they still are husband and wife.

BELONG IN CALIFORNIA.

That they are, and for a long time have been, bona fide residents of the State of California, and therefore their married status, as any question of dissolution, is under the jurisdiction of the law and courts of California and never was subject to the laws of Nevada.

That their marriage could only be dissolved by the Superior Court of the County of Los Angeles, California, subject to the delay imposed by an interlocutory decree.

That Douglas Fairbanks, at the time Mary Pickford came to Nevada and instituted her suit, had also been a resident of Los Angeles County and that while the moving picture actress and the wife of Owen Moore, she and Fairbanks had planned to get married to marry as quickly as her divorce could be obtained, and that this agreement was made in California.

HOW DIVORCE WAS OBTAINED.

That thereafter the defendants, together with Douglas Fairbanks, fully knowing all of the laws applicable to be true, did wilfully and wrongfully connect and enter into a scheme to defraud.

In this connection the complaint goes on to state that Mary Pickford came to Douglas County, Nevada, and remaining there in all just seventeen days, and that soon as she had a bona-fide residence there; that she filed her suit against Owen Moore on the ground of desertion; that Owen Moore simultaneously appeared on the scene, entered a meritorious answer, and then and there submitted to oath, and vanished; that at 3:30 p. m. March 24, 1920, was set for trial and heard, and that by means of the pleadings and Mary Pickford's testimony a decree was entered in her favor, and that subsequently the marriage license in Los Angeles was issued to the defendants.

EXPECTS ANSWER AT ONCE.

It is also alleged that not a fact contained in the pleading or in Mary Pickford's testimony was true except those relating to her presence in Nevada. Owen Moore, it is said, was the sole purpose of being served and the allegations of his answer to the complaint and that they are "false, fraudulent, fabricated [illegible] defendants to be so."

While Mary Pickford and Owen Moore, under the laws of Nevada, have forty days in which to answer, it is not believed by Attorney-General Fowler that they will do so.

"I fully expected the defendants to accept service at once," said Fowler [illegible]. "Of course, I presume that the first step to be taken by Gavin McNab, Owen Moore's legal counsel, will be to interpose a demurrer and to attempt to show that the Nevada court cannot lawfully bring the action which I have just filed. I am ready for the outcome. We are fortified with the facts as are sure of our case and I predict that the divorce decree will be annulled."

THEODORE N. VAIL'S BODY TAKEN TO NEW JERSEY

Baltimore, Md., April 17.—The body of Theodore N. Vail, chairman of the board of directors of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, was taken today from a vault in the family tomb at Parsippany tomorrow. The deceased passed away at the Johns Hopkins Hospital, having suffered there for days as a result of Georgia. Complications of diseases was given as the cause.

108 PRINTERS IN MONTREAL STRIKE

Montreal, Que., April 17.—One hundred and eight typographers on the Montreal Sta retreats because of a wage dispute. The man demand $40 a week minimum scale while the publishers offer $36. The strike is not supported by the international headquarters.

Cigar Prices to Jump 10 P. C. in Boston

Cigars are going up—not only in smoke—but in price.

Beginning next week the smokers' favorite weed will cost from 5 to 10 per cent. more in most of Benton's tobacco stores. The reason given for the advance is that cigars have jumped 12 per thousand and that the price of tobacco has crept upward along with the cost of labor and cigar boxes.

No longer will one be able to buy the brand which sold in the old days for "three for a quarter" —at 12 cents each or three for 25 cents. They will now cost 13 cents straight. The cheaper cigars, however, will not advance in price.

BABSON 'COMES BACK' AT SMOOT

Charges Senator With Effort to Censor News From Washington

Roger W. Babson of Wellesley Hills, who was recently accused by Senator Smoot of making money out of the government in the big U. S. crop, has sent a formal answer to the Senator.

In an open letter to the Senator he says among other things:

"There is no reason that I can think of for your attack on me. For some time you and your associates have tried to hold an invisible control over a large portion of the Washington news. This is unfair to the newspapers of the country. This forced the government bureaus to issue bulletins of their own and left a field for a general publication such as the United States Bulletin, which I control and which you are attacking.

"This Bulletin serves all the departments alike and publishes material which, for one reason or another, does not interest the newspapers. For some time this development has worried you and your associates. You have seen your control being gradually taken away from you. The government officials were continually expressing themselves with candor. Therefore you had attached to a recent appropriation bill a rider which requires all bulletins issued by any bureau, O. K. of your committee, namely, the Joint Committee on Printing, before they can be published. This means practically that they must receive your approval. This I mean a split and a third party.

"Governor Coolidge's plan is based, rightly or wrongly, largely on the results of the police strike. The fact, however, is that in Massachusetts, considered a sure Republican State in a national election, will unquestionably go Democratic in consideration. Nothing in the Coolidge campaign plan is more formidable or likely to be supported than was the candidacy of Curtis Guild at the Chicago convention in 1912.

"With party lines practically abolished, the importance of the real issues and the availability of the characteristics of the possible candidates promise to make the coming campaign the most important and interesting since that which elected Abraham Lincoln."

WILL ASK WILSON TO FREE WAR SUSPECTS

George W. Coleman, William Lloyd Garrison, Mrs. Glendower Evans and Robert G. Shaw are among those who will petition President Wilson on Patriots' Day for the release of about 700 political prisoners, who were convicted during the war and who are still held in various prisons throughout the country for offenses under the draft and espionage acts. The chairman of the Citizens' Amnesty Committee is Frederick N. Judson of St. Louis. Mr. Manley and he will be joined there on Monday by delegates from committees now existing in other parts of the country. Secretary Tumulty, representing the President, will receive the delegates when they present the petition.

"WET" MAN WINNER OVER BRYAN'S FRIEND

Hartford, Ct., April 17.—Running on a "wet" ticket, Connecticut Internal Revenue Collector Walsh overwhelmed Philip Troup, son of William Jennings Bryan's close friend, Alexander Troup, reported to be a prohibitionist.

Walsh will probably be one of Connecticut's "big four" at the San Francisco convention, and will present the fourteen delegates from behind the Democratic banner, according to Palmer as the Democratic Presidential nominee.

LAWRENCE SEEKS GIRLS SENTENCED IN BOSTON

Lawrence, April 17.—Judge T. J. Maloney has issued a capias for the arrest of Rosa Levine, known as "Rose" Johnson police as "Jennie the Gunwoman," and Mary Fabiano, both of whom were paroled in local Municipal Court, where they were to have been tried on charges of being idle and disorderly.

Judge Mahoney ordered them brought here for trial after they serve the sentences imposed in the Roxbury court.

MAY USE CAR BARN FOR WEYMOUTH MEETING

Because of the lack of a hall large enough to house some 3,000 legal voters of Weymouth, the Selectmen are seriously considering the use of the old East Weymouth car barns, recently vacated by the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway, as a meeting place. It is the only building in the town large enough to accommodate all the voters at one time.

FRANCE PUTS FURTHER BAN UPON IMPORTS

Paris, April 17. — The Cabinet has decided to put further restrictions upon importations because of the exchange rates.

HOUR RIPE FOR THIRD PARTY

Gaston Sees Greatest Opportunity in Nation's History for New Political Organization

Colonel William A. Gaston, banker, Democratic political leader and industrial expert, declares that never in the history of American politics was the period more propitious for the success of a third party than in the present presidential campaign.

Claiming that he cannot see anything which would point to "favorite sons" either as direct or compromise candidates, Gaston says:

"The dividing political issues of the coming campaign are yet to be defined by the respective platforms of our two great parties.

"On the Republican side, candidates who are the followers of the Roosevelt tradition seem to be greatly in evidence. The 'old guard' aspirants—Harding and others—do not seem to be strong, in popular opinion. If Hoover had finally selected the Democratic instead of the Republican party as, being in neither, it was in his power to do, both from the standpoint of the nomination and election he would have been a formidable opponent to any Republican who could be named against him.

JOHNSON WILL CARRY STATE.

As a Republican, however, the test for Hoover will be made in California, and from all the reports that California Johnson will probably win in his own State.

"As between Wood and Johnson, it is easily conceivable that a situation may arise where the more conservative forces in the Republican party will force a combination of the supporters of these two men, in which case some candidate other than Wood or Hoover may appear to be the most available compromise, which has the advantage of a 'solid South,' to put forth as candidate a definite representative of the Wilson policies. If the President's health continues to improve during this time this development is within the realm of reasonable probability; otherwise Palmer or Glass will be the administration candidate.

COOLIDGE'S CHANCE.

"On the anti-Wilson side there are Thomas, Lowden, Shields and Cox of Ohio, Underwood and Champ Clark.

"Assuming, what is not likely, that the 'Old Guard' in the Republican party succeeds in getting a candidate nominated, it would mean a split and a third party.

"Governor Coolidge's plan is based, rightly or wrongly, largely on the results of the police strike. The fact, however, is that in Massachusetts, considered a sure Republican State in a national election, will unquestionably go Democratic in consideration. Nothing in the Coolidge campaign plan is more formidable or likely to be supported than was the candidacy of Curtis Guild at the Chicago convention in 1912.

"With party lines practically abolished, the importance of the real issues and the availability of the characteristics of the possible candidates promise to make the coming campaign the most important and interesting since that which elected Abraham Lincoln."

Both Mr. and Mrs. Lowe are natives of Ireland. They were married in Woburn, on April 18, 1868. Soon after they made their home in Medford, where Mr. Lowe was a contractor. They moved to Arlington 30 years ago. They have a number of children and grandchildren, George H. (Bulger) Lowe, the well known athlete, is a grandson.

WOULD BAR REDS FROM CITIZENSHIP

Washington, April 16.—Amendments to the naturalization law by which alien "Reds" shall be denied admission to citizenship are provided in a bill reported in the House by the House immigration Committee. It provides, also, new methods for applying for citizenship and requires all aliens entering the United States to announce whether they intend to be born and to make application for first papers.

SHORTAGE OF LABOR DELAYING BUILDING

Washington, April 17.—A shortage of 25 to 40 per cent. in common labor is delaying building operations throughout the country, says House Immigration Committee was told by Donald Taylor, president of the Building Trades Employers' Association, and Clarence L. Smith, president of the Contractors' Protective Association of New York.

ARABS WANT JEWISH ARMY DISBANDED

London, April 17.—The Arabs in Palestine have made a demand for the disbanding of the Jewish army on the threat of a massacre, but the demand has been ruled by General Allenby, the British military commissioner, it was reported from Cairo. The Foreign Office reports the stand taken by General Allenby.

"BREADMAKER" GIVEN HOLIDAY AT HARVARD

Professor Lawrence J. Henderson, '98, Harvard's "breadmaking" professor, who performed experiments for the army authorities on the best way of making bread during the war, has been granted a leave of absence for the year 1920-21.

"FIRST WIFE" CLAIMS NELSON, NOW HIDING WITH COUNTESS BRIDE

HER MOVE MENACES ROMANCE

Army Lieutenant and Noblewoman Must Face Trial for Arson

Bangor, Me., April 17.—A romance of an American lieutenant and his bride, the widow of a French count, which came to light following the arrest in Boston of Mr. and Mrs. George Leroy Nelson on a charge of arson, this fair to be disrupted with the appearance of a woman claiming to be Nelson's "first wife."

This woman, declaring herself to be Mrs. Ida Morancy Colson, lives in Lewiston. She states that she was married to the ex-soldier by a Justice of the Peace in Laconia, N. H., on September 6, 1915.

NELSON AND BRIDE IN HIDING.

With the latest twist in Maine's most sensational war romance comes also the information that Nelson and his bride, who styles herself the Countess Hermance Grether De Beck, cannot be found.

They are believed to be hiding in this city, taking refuge from the notoriety which came through their arrest and subsequent arraignment. Their joint bail of $1,000 each by the Grand Jury.

The couple are charged jointly with setting fire to their home in Carmel, a village fifteen miles from here, on March 4, in order to collect the insurance. They deny this charge, but are confronted with the testimony of witnesses, who declare that the two shipped considerable matter from their home a few days before the fire.

WOOED BY ARMY OFFICER.

The arrest of the Countess and her husband brings to a close a chapter in a romance befitting fiction. According to the story told the villagers of Carmel by this noblewoman, she is the widow of Count de Beck, a Frenchman, who lived in London. After his death, she relates, she went to France to engage in war work, and in Paris met and was wooed by a dashing officer of the Salonika Division.

She consented to marry him, she says, and followed him to America, where he was going to make her his bride.

On the boat coming over, she continues, she met Nelson, a lieutenant in the Engineering Corps, on service and a lover convinced her that she had made a mistake in her first choice, so she changed her mind.

Nelson, previous to the war, had lived on a small farm in Carmel with a woman who, in time, became one of the neighbors, was his wife. Her first name was "Ida" and it is believed that Ida is the woman who now claims Nelson as her lawful husband.

FARMHOUSE REMODELLED.

Nelson and the countess first appeared in Carmel last June. Their arrival caused considerable comment among the villagers, who could not account for the extravagant disposition of the woman known as Mrs. Nelson.

The couple went to live at a neighbor's house and workmen were immediately engaged to remodel the farmhouse into a modern bungalow.

In the meantime packing cases and trunks were arriving from Paris, and their contents of expensive rugs, tapestry and silverware were being installed in the remodelled home.

In October, Nelson and the countess were married at a ceremony performed before a few friends in the parlor of the Bangor Hotel and the couple returned to take up their residence in the completed bungalow.

The countess' manner and refinement impressed all of her neighbors. She wore thousands of dollars' worth of diamonds and her home was elaborately furnished by the articles which came from London and which she claimed were part of her dead husband's effects.

KEPT FINE HORSES.

The countess had a pair of fine looking, riding horses and spent much of their time riding about the country. Nelson is a civil engineer, but since his marriage he has not engaged in any work other than caring for his new home.

The bungalow was destroyed by fire during the night of March 4, and according to the story then told, the couple escaped with their lives only by leaping from their bedroom window.

The next day Nelson tried to collect his insurance. Policies were in three companies and in value totalled more than $10,000. The insurance officials evidently were not satisfied by the circumstances surrounding the fire and started an investigation which resulted in the arrest Wednesday of the couple at a Boston hotel by Sheriff Fernandes.

Hint Cunliffe-Owen $500,000 Suit Settled

Photo © International.

Lady Cunliffe-Owen, wife of the British tobacco king, whose husband, Marvelle C. Brice, brought a mysterious suit for $500,000 against her present spouse.

New York, April 17.—Hints of a settlement satisfactory to all the parties concerned in the $500,000 suit of Marvelle C. Brice against Sir Hugo Cunliffe-Owen, the British tobacco king, are given by friends of both sides. Brice's former wife is now Lady Cunliffe-Owen.

Brice is said to be employed by a music publisher in this city, but a search of these places failed to reveal his whereabouts, although his name appeared to be well known in the trade.

In Broadway, where Brice is well known, there is a story current that Brice's lawyer, Harford T. Marshall, effected a financial settlement with Sir Hugo through the latter's close friend and attorney, F. D. Warfield, of West Forty-Fourth street.

Mr. Warfield refused to make a statement as to the present status of the suit, but Mr. Marshall, while inclined to be reticent, admitted that the complaint in the action had not been filed and would not be.

TAXICAB RATES STANDARDIZED

Curtis Revises Fares, Fixing 50 Cents for First Half-Mile, Then 70 Cents

Standardization of the extra fare charge, is the principal feature of the amendments to the taxicab rate regulations just issued by Police Commissioner Curtis. A small reduction in return trip rates, waiting time and extra passenger rates is also made in the amendments which are effective May 1.

Hereafter machines carrying meters must be adjusted so that the charges will be 50 cents for the first half mile, 10 cents for each quarter mile thereafter and 40 cents for each extra person for the entire distance, no matter how great. At present the extra fare rate varies according to the distance.

Waiting time is defined to include all time the machine is not running. The rate will be 10 cents for each three minutes. No charge shall be made for time lost due to traffic delay or through inefficiency of the vehicle or its driver, or for time lost through premature arrival of the machine.

No charge can be made under the new regulations where the distance traveled in responding to a call is less than a mile, but for a greater distance a charge of 20 cents a mile may be made for each mile and fraction thereof over.

When a machine is dismissed at a point more than a mile away from the place where it was engaged or place from which it was called, a back mileage charge of 20 cents may be made for each mile or fraction thereof. Hand baggage may be carried without charge. Trunks shall be optional with the driver at a fare of 50 cents for each trunk and 35 cents for each additional one. Every toll must be paid by the passengers.

In the event of machines being engaged by the hour for trips wholly or in part outside the city the person in charge may suspend the meter, with the consent of the occupant, and the taximan then will come under provisions relating to charges for usage of automobiles.

JOHNSON'S PAPERS FILED IN MARYLAND

Baltimore, Md., April 17.—United States Senator Johnson's papers as presidential candidate in the Maryland primaries to be held May 3 have been filed at Annapolis.

FEAR GRAB BY JAPS IN SIBERIA

Washington Shows Uneasy Interest in Activities of Mikado's Forces

By International News Service.

Washington, April 17.—The activities of Japanese troops along the Chinese Eastern railway and in the vicinity of Vladivostok, Kharabovsk, and Nikolaievsk, in Eastern Siberia are being watched from Washington with uneasy interest.

It is believed the Japs intend to keep a large part of Siberia. Clashes between Japanese troops and the Russians and between the Japanese and armed workers, among them being Czechs, along the line of communication by rail from the Baikal region to the Sea of Japan are growing in seriousness and in frequency. Officials here say neither the exact cause of the friction nor the precise aim of Japan's military operations has been made clear.

The State Department has been informed that two new Japanese divisions will be dispatched to Asia almost immediately. A message from Tokio explained that these divisions are to relieve tired divisions now in Siberia. This is taken to indicate that instead of withdrawing from that part of the world, as Japan was supposed to do when the French, British and Americans cleared out of Russia, as they have now done, Japan intends keeping large forces there.

These forces now number about 86,000. The original intention of the allies was for the United States, France, England and Japan each to send to Russia about 7,000 men. Japan first sent 60,000, but later cut this number down to half, only to reinforce the contingent subsequently by two fresh brigades. An exempt from a Japanese paper printed in Hawaii has reached Washington, with the assertion that the Japanese are in Siberia to stay.

MATTAPAN BOY'S HENS WIN AT LAYING

The poultry club, composed of pupils of West Roxbury High School, has announced William K. Budge of Mattapan as winner of the club's Winter egg-laying contest with a score of 40.66. Walter R. Van Hall of Roslindale was second with 40.45, and others highly commended were: Harry E. Fraser, Donald W. Rust and Richard Barry, all of Jamaica Plain; Kenneth W. Steeve of Mattapan and Hayden C. Mills of West Roxbury.

WILL DON DENIM AT JUNIOR PROM

Columbia Students Join Drive in New York Against Costly Clothing

New York, May 17.—The once humble overall today promised to become the principal article of clothing here when clubs, schools, business houses and civic organizations made themselves ready to don blue denim as a protest against the present high prices of clothing.

Columbia University students are the latest to fall in line with the protestant army. George J. Macy, who is chairman of the junior prom committee, announced that both girls and men who attended the junior prom next week will be requested to appear in denim.

A dress suit of fashionable cut is being introduced here by members of the Cheese Club, organization of dramatic writers, press agents and editors of theatrical trade.

Other organizations which have formed overall clubs are the Bronx Business Men's Club; the De Witt Clinton High School student body, made up of 5,000 students and forty-five members of the faculty, and the Women's Civic Federation.

Bronx clubs in the metropolitan district are organizing many overall clubs. Among them are those of Asbury Park. Twenty-two other clubs reach all the way from New York to Albany.

MAYOR INDORSES MOVEMENT.

Louisville, Ky., April 17.—An overalls club was formed in Louisville by the Exchange Club in an effort to force down the cost of clothing. Eighty-five members pledged their suppot to the movement, which has been indorsed by Mayor George Smith.

It is proposed that women join in the movement by adopting gingham dresses. The Exchange Club voted a fine of $1 against any of its members who appear at the organization's luncheon next week not attired in denims. A parade of members dressed in overalls and ginghams is planned for next week.

FIRM TO OUTFIT STRIKERS.

Springfield, April 17.—Announcement was made by the Smith & Wesson Company that the company would back the overall club which its 900 employes have organized and would assume responsibility for the outfit at cost. The company's officers have entered the movement to the extent of agreeing to wear the new garments on working days, as will the factory workers.

STUDENTS WEAR OLD CLOTHES.

OVERALLS IN PULPIT.

Liberty, Mo., April 17.—Many business houses here are displaying signs that they are members of the Overall Club. The superintendent of schools is wearing overalls in his school work and advising students of the senior classes here will wear overalls when the commencement exercises. The Rev. W. E. Matthews, pastor of the Methodist Church here, will wear overalls when he appears in the pulpit tomorrow.

OVERALLS FOR CONVENTION.

Topeka, Kan., April 17.—Ed T. Hackney, State fair price commissioner, has started a movement to have all the delegates to the Democratic State convention on April 22 wear overalls and jumpers. Mr. Hackney stated that his county delegation had taken the initiative by adopting overalls as the official uniform for the convention.

BUSINESS MEN IN LINE.

Fort Smith, Ark., April 17.—More than one thousand business men and high school girls here donned overalls in a fight against the high cost of clothes.

JUDGES WEAR OVERALLS.

Miami, Okla., April 17.—The Ottawa County Bar Association has formed an overalls club, among the members of the county and judges of the district and county courts.

WIRE CHIEFS IN OVERALLS.

St. Louis, Mo., April 17.—Fifty wire chiefs and other employes of the plant department of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company in St. Louis have organized an "overall club" and pledged themselves not only to wear denims to work but in all times and to all affairs. The club will first appear in overalls beginning May 1.

ELEVATED NET PROFIT FOR MONTH $91,076

March was a better month than February for the Boston Elevated Railway Company financially, according to the monthly statement of receipts and cost of service, made public. The total receipts for March were $2,232,842, and the total cost of service was $2,326,946.56. The net profit for the month was $91,076.32. The net deficit to be accounted March 31 was $661,266.21, it is stated.

A total of 29,187,238 revenue passengers were carried, a decrease from fares being $2,871,656.21. The cost of service per revenue passenger was 19.96 cents.

$70,000 FIRE IN WAKEFIELD PLANT

Wakefield, April 17.—The American Reed and Willow Furniture Company's plant, Railroad street, Wakefield Junction, was destroyed by fire, the total loss of the structure, machinery and contents being placed at $70,000.

The fire started in the paint shop on the first floor and worked its way up through the structure to the roof.

ROCKEFELLER IS NON-COMMITTAL

Unable to Explain Exclusion of Universalists and Unitarians from Movement

When John D. Rockefeller, Jr., was asked why Boston Unitarians and Universalists were not welcomed in the Interchurch World Movement after delivering his address here, that co-operation was to be the keynote among the Christian denominations today and that thirty of them had signed with the movement, he replied:

"I cannot state my own personal views of that subject for I am merely following the organization which I represent. The organization has seen fit not to enlist the interests of these two denominations and that is as far as I can speak on that subject."

"But did you not some time ago in your own Baptist denomination take down the barriers about requiring immersion to membership in your denomination?" he was asked.

"I did this because I believe in co-operation among the churches," he answered. "As I have said before, the churches must stop fighting one another and stand together, fighting evil. There has been too much competition among the churches. Many churches are a hindrance. Such churches should be taken down. To depend too much upon the restrictions of the past for our present and future management, would be nothing short of being unreasonable.

"When I saw the opportunity represented in the Interchurch World Movement I could not help but avail myself of it.

"Now, to answer your question as to why Unitarians are not admitted. That is a question for the organization to determine. I have no right to anticipate their judgment or to speak for it."

The Interchurch World Movement will be discussed at the annual convention of the Episcopal Diocese of Massachusetts Wednesday, which will hold its business session in Huntington Hall. This service for the address of Bishop Lawrence will be in Trinity Church at 8 p. m. It is not clear to many of the delegates to this convention what are the relations of the Episcopal church to the Interchurch World Movement, and this matter will be settled at this convention. Reports of the committees on general missions, on the church pension fund, on salaries of the clergy and of the board of education will also be made.

ASKS $100,000, 'LEFT AT ALTAR'

New York, April 17.—Permitted to wait on the church if he is alleged, by her recreant lover, Lieutenant Alling Cole of No. 251 West street, Manhattan, Miss Ada D. Gardner of Anadako, Okla., said to be the prettiest girl in Oklahoma, is suing him for $100,000, charging breach of promise.

Through her attorney, former Congressman William S. Bennett, she has formally appeared before the Supreme Court Justice McAvoy to support her application for a commission to take testimony in the defendant's parents and others whom she hopes know the circumstances of the soldier's whirlwind courtship and the jilting of the bride at the altar. Miss Gardner declares love at first sight sprang into being when she and Lieutenant Cole met in December, 1918, and that the wedding was arranged for January 31, 1919.

RECAPTURED PRISONER GETS 21-YEAR SENTENCE

Providence, April 17.—Daniel Leavens was sentenced to twenty-one years in the State prison when arraigned on two counts, one for assault on Deputy Sheriff C. Ralph Tillinghast and one for escaping from an officer. He was sentenced to twenty years on the first count and one year on the second. Leavens, with fifteen other prisoners, escaped from a prison van on March 2-11, 1918. It was alleged that he took a revolver from one of the guards and shot Tillinghast.

NEWBURYPORT WORKERS SEEK FIVE-DAY WEEK

Newburyport, April 17.—A movement said to have the backing of the United Shoe Workers, is under way here to introduce a uniform forty-five-hour week in the shoe factories and to have the work done in five days, working nine hours a day—leaving Saturday for recreation. The plan has already been put up to manufacturers, some of whom, it is claimed, are willing to try the plan for six months.

PLAN COURT-MARTIAL SYSTEM CHANGE

Washington, April 17. — A Bill introduced by Senator Chamberlain, Democrat, of Oregon, for the reorganization of the army court-martial system was favorably reported to the Senate by the Senate Military Affairs Committee. The bill provides for the creation of a board of review in the judge advocate's office with power to annual or modify all court-martial sentences.

WALPOLE MAN SUED FOR $1,500 IN AUTO MISHAP

Harry C. Fahrenholt of Walpole has begun suit in the sum of $1,500 vs. William J. Hill of Cambridge, who alleges that he was injured when the defendant's automobile in which he was riding in. Stephen J. Torre of Cambridge sues Fahrenholt for $300 for damage to his machine in the collision.

FIX FAIR POTATO PRICE IN MICHIGAN

Detroit, Mich., April 17.—The government fair price board for Southern Michigan today fixed the price of potatoes at $3.00 per bushel for retail sales.

Women Tell What Sex Wants in Politics

By International News Service.

Washington, April 17.—Asked the question "What do you women voters want?" representative women of various political beliefs have given answers that may be summed up as follows:

A settlement of international questions that will guarantee future peace.

Removal of all sex discriminations in law, politics and industry.

Drastic measures to reduce the cost of living.

Protective legislation for women and children.

All declared that presidential candidates seeking the woman vote must make these the principal issues in the campaign. The concensus of opinion expressed was that the League of Nations would be a bigger issue with the women than any other.

"This is because we can have no peace until the international muddle is settled," said Mrs. Abby Scott Baker, political chairman of the National Woman's Party. "I do not say that the women want the President's League of Nations. No one who has travelled through the country and sounded sentiment has any doubt that the women intend to register at the polls a demand for some sort of international settlement that will stop future wars.

"The women do not want any more wars, that is the great mass of them do not. For it is the women who bear the brunt of wars. For that reason I do not believe any man who candidated who stands for militarism will have any chance with the women voters."

According to Mrs. George Bass of Chicago, chairman of the women's bureau of the National Democratic Committee, is the President's League of Nations that they want.

"I do not say this because I believe in the President's League of Nations," said Mrs. Bass. "I'm simply reporting the sentiment of women all over the country, women of all political faiths.

"It amazed me to find that the women were more interested in international issues than in the domestic problems."

Mrs. Lillian H. Gardener, the first woman appointed to the United States civil service commission, vice president of the national Women's Suffrage Association and counsellor of the League of Women Voters, said:

"The women want the things that will make the world better for their boys and girls. They want improved legislation for women and children; a plank for disarmament and above all they want equal opportunity for women in everything and they want action against profiteers in the necessities of life and they will vote for those things regardless of party."

Mrs. Benigna Green Kalb of Houston, Texas, secretary of the Farm Women's National Congress, declared the women would universally register a protest against militarism. She said: "Farm women demand a reduction in the cost of living, and that a war shall not be brought about at the expense of the farmer."

'DOLL' LETTERS IN LOVE TANGLE

Wealthy N. Y. Jeweler Names High French Attaches in Suit for Divorce

New York, April 17.—"Beautiful baby doll" letters were introduced as exhibits before Supreme Court Justice Platzek by Raoul Stasse, wealthy New York and Paris jeweler, in his divorce action against Mrs. Eugenie Stasse.

Two French high commission attaches were named by the husband, Captain Henri Bandivarde, and his superior, Edouard de Jarck, with whom Stasse declared were over friendly with his wife.

Stasse, during the testimony Mrs. Stasse found De Lord, a wealthy Frenchman, support in the divorce suit, not only in position on the French High Commission, but in attractiveness, according to Stasse's counsel. De Lord, it was alleged, and sailed with the latter for Europe.

Bandivarde was a little pleased with Mrs. Stasse's preference for de Lord, it was testified, that he administered a beating to the jewelry shop prior to her departure for France.

The "beautiful baby doll" letters were said to have been written by De Lord to Mrs. Stasse.

Wins Prize for German

Nicholas Depopolo, of Westfield, received the Elizabeth Wilder Prize, offered by a Harvard freshman each year who distinguishes himself in German at the midyear examinations, it was announced at Cambridge.

TURNED THIEF TO SAVE FIANCEE

Hotel Astor Paymaster in Court Claims His Betrothed Was Drug Addict

New York, April 17.—It was to help the girl he loved to complete her cure of the drug habit that he stole various sums of money from the Hotel Astor, according to his attorney, according to the confession made by former Lieutenant Edward T. Lynch, thirty-one, which was presented to Judge Mulqueen in General Sessions court. Lynch pleaded guilty to second degree larceny.

Lynch's confession stated that after his discharge from the army he was employed as assistant paymaster at the Hotel Astor. He met and loved a girl who, he later learned, was a drug addict.

Curiously impelled him to take some money. "To see what effect it would have," despite the girl's protest, and he, too, became addicted to the habit. He then went to an institution to be cured, and he applied himself to building up a business in a jewelry shop prior to her departure for France.

The "beautiful baby doll" letters were said to have been written by De Lord to Mrs. Stasse.

665 Americans Slain; No Mexicans Punished

Washington, April 17.—This summary of the results of President Wilson's policy with respect to Mexico was given to the Senate committee investigating Mexican affairs by former Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson:

Americans murdered in Mexico or along the border by Mexicans, 665.

Mexicans punished for the crimes done.

Half a billion dollars spent by the American government to prevent the Carranza government from being overturned.

50,000 Mexicans killed.

100,000 Mexicans died of disease and starvation directly due to the prevailing chaos.

$100,000,000 which Diaz left in the treasury disappeared and in its place there now exists a deficit of $350,000,000.

3,000 churches desecrated, 1,500 clergy expelled and 354 convents pillaged under circumstances not fit to describe.

80,000 American troops being held on the border at a cost of from $300,000,000 a year to the people of the United States.

After enumerating these facts in his summary, Mr. Wilson said:

"All this was rendered necessary by the policy of the administration to maintain Carranza in power and maintain the legend that peace and order prevailed in Mexico, when complete failure of the administration's policy in dealing with the Mexican question was the real cause of the trouble.

Mr. Wilson said his data was compiled from official records. He severely criticized the policy of the present administration in dealing with Carranza, who, he said, would never had been heard of if the administration had not made up its mind to drive out Villa.

HUNDREDS FIGHT MAINE FLOOD

S. O. S. Call Sent Out at Sherman Mills When Dam Breaks

Houlton, Me., April 17.—Forty pairs of horses and hundreds of men and boys, responding to an S. O. S. call sent out from Sherman Mills to help control the flood, were hard at work today hauling rock to fill in the seventy-five feet of current when washed away by the swollen current.

The water rose several more feet during the night, and several roads and conveyance was by rowboat.

Many fear that the dam, which they hoped to have the gap in the dam closed by night, but were working against time, and it was found impossible to back the teams close enough to the rock had to be carried by hand for some distance. Booms erected to protect pulp wood in the mill pond are heavily strained.

CAMBRIDGE TENEMENT BLOCK HAS BLAZE

Two alarms were sounded for a fire of undetermined origin which partially destroyed an unoccupied twelve-tenement house, known as the Mosquito Block, on Broadway, near Sixth street, Cambridgeport. The property is owned by Carl Ahl.

The discovery of a large still—galvanized steel tank, copper coil and large barrel—was made by police officers who examined the ruins following the fire. Also half a barrel of mash, some yeast, raisins and other ingredients. This was all located in a part of the structure untouched by the fire. The owners are not yet known to the police, who are guarding the apparatus pending the arrival of revenue officers.

LYNCHERS SCARE LANDLORD

He Stops Evictions at Sight of Rope and Signs Leases at Low Rentals

Detroit, April 17.—Jerome C. Moore, a landlord, was saved from lynching and placed in jail for protection after he had attempted to eject two women tenants from a flat at No. 1130 Third avenue, this city.

While the rope noose carried by the mob was threateningly near, Moore signed a six months' lease to the tenants at a rental less than half the amount he had planned to charge.

Hundreds of persons gathered in the street while Moore and his janitor were piling the furniture of the tenants outside the door. Mrs. George Vossler, mother and sole support of two children while her husband is a patient in a tuberculosis sanatorium, stood in the doorway weeping.

One of the spectators who had entered the building returned to the crowd to report that Mrs. Ora Rice, aged mother of a Detroit policeman, was weeping while kneeling in prayer in the apartment from which she was being evicted.

The temper of the crowd became ugly. Moore suddenly ceased his eviction efforts and went to his residence, adjoining the flat building. The crowd followed and "invited" Moore out.

When the landlord came to the street he was presented a hurriedly drawn lease which fixed the rent at $70, instead of the $150 he had asked.

Reed A. Terry, deputy sheriff, had been summoned to act as notary.

"Do you sign this willingly," the notary asked.

Moore looked at the faces crowded in, about him.

"Yes" he answered as he seized the extended pen and hurriedly attached his signature.

Deputy Sheriff Terry was credited with preventing violence when the angry neighbors secured a rope, surrounded Moore and cried "Hang him, hang him." The deputy sheriff later took the landlord to the police station to insure his safety.

SOMERVILLE SPLIT ON SUNDAY SPORTS

The Sunday sports bill is to meet with considerable opposition in Somerville. Already a large delegation of ministers have protested against the Sunday sports bill which was up for hearing at 10 o'clock this morning before the Committee on Legislative Matters. Mr. Benedict Council, K. of C., will have a meeting at his home on the subject. Several members of the organization have reported to be opposed to accepting the act for passage.

Aldermen Arthur F. Mason and Emerson Wood, on behalf of Ward 7, have put the question of Sunday sports directly up to the voters of their ward by having inserted in the registered voters to send them their views.

TO RAISE MONEY FOR NEW SEVICE CLUB

Entertainments to raise money for the new service club in the club house to be opened at No. 10 Park square by the Community Service of Boston are being arranged by a committee of prominent Boston women headed by Mrs. William de la Gaston. A tea and dance will be held at the clubhouse during the first week of May. The week following will close with a Service men participating. Mrs. Gaston's committee will work with the army and navy community committee which is headed by Mrs. Evelyn Peverley Coe.

CHARGE MERCHANT MADE 100 PER CENT. ON SUITS

Manchester, N. H., April 17.—Suits which cost $56 were said to have been sold for $72 by a merchant in this city who will be brought before the United States Court at Concord next week by federal agents investigating alleged profiteering by Manchester and Portsmouth merchants. This is the first instance of excessive profits in either city, according to the investigators.

OGDEN WILL SERVE AS CARMEN'S ARBITRATOR

Hugh Ogden has been selected as the third arbitrator at a conference of the board to which has been referred the wage increase demands of the employees of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Company. The other arbitrators are James H. Vahey, counsel for the Bay State Carmen's Union, representing the employees, and Philip H. Carleton, counsel for the company, and its representative on the board. Ogden is a well-known Boston lawyer.

METHODISTS ENDORSE LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Haverhill, April 17.—Resolutions supporting the league of Nations were adopted by the Massachusetts Methodist Episcopal conference session held here. Bishop Hughes interrupted proceedings to read the minimum salary of married preachers in the conference at $2000 a year. He stated that he feared the public would misunderstand the resolutions and that he would issue a different form and noted upon later.

50 PER CENT. RAISE TO AMHERST FACULTY

Amherst, April 17.—An increase of 50 per cent. in salary to all members of the Amherst College faculty has been announced by President Alexander Meiklejohn. An increase of 10 per cent. for the maintenance of buildings and grounds has also been decided upon by the trustees. The tuition fee is to be increased to meet the additional increases.

Chelsea Boy to Debate

George B. Lourie of Chelsea will take part in the Harvard, Yale and Princeton triangular debate. Lourie was graduated from the Chelsea High School last year.

MAHONY CITES BRITISH AND U. S. LAW UPHOLDING ERIN'S CASE

REFERENDUM ONLY COULD VALIDATE UNION

bellion, there were 78,995 British soldiers.

In Ireland in 1798 during the rebellion there were 91,999 British soldiers.

In Ireland in 1798 after the rebellion, there were 114,052 British soldiers.

In Ireland in 1800 at time of Act of Union, there were 129,258 British soldiers.

(O'Connell, to Dublin Corp. on Repeal, p. 42.)

In fact, Cornwallis, in addition to the above, was offered by the English government 5,000 Russian troops, the assistance of which he declined. (Cornwallis Corresp. III., 137-138.)

The Act of Union may best be summed up in the words of the sold English historian and the said English statesman as follows:

"It seems to me idle to dispute the essentially corrupt character of the means by which the union was carried." (Lecky, Hist. of Eng., 18th Cent., p. 395.)

"The union, as it was carried, was a crime of the deepest turpitude." (Lecky, Leaders of Public Opinion in Ireland, p. 82.)

"The blackest and foulest transaction in the history of man." (Gladstone, June 28, 1886.)

The Act of Union was therefore void upon the ground that it was secured only by the illegal means above set forth.

(b) WAS IT THE VALID ACT OF THE IRISH PARLIAMENT?

It is also an elementary principle of constitutional law that the power of legislation delegated to a Legislature cannot be further delegated. Potestas delegata non delegari potest. This principle is set forth in text books and decisions, too numerous to mention.

"It is a general principle of constitutional law that the power conferred upon the Legislature by the constitution, to make laws, cannot be delegated by that body to any other person or authority, in any such manner as to preclude the resumption of the power, or of its exercise, whenever the public interest required it. The legislators are the agents or trustees of the people, and they have no right or power to place the trust irrevocably in other hand than their own." (Black's Cosnitutional Law, p. 374, sec. 143.)

"A constitution (form of government) can be amended or changed only by the parties creating or giving sanction to the constitution. Ordinarily a legislature has power only to propose amendments which are usually required to be submitted to the people. As a general rule ratification by a vote of the people is essential to the validity of the amendment." (8 Cyc. 806—cases cited.)

It may be well, however, to cite some authority upon this point which apply directly to England and Ireland.

A book on government, by Locke, was used as a text book in England and in Trinity College, Dublin, to justify the Revolution of 1688 and to prove that James II. had no title to the throne, and that William was the lawful monarch. It was significantly withdrawn from Trinity College after the Act of Union. It is stated in Locke on Government that:

"The legislators cannot transfer the power of making laws into other hands, for it being but a delegated power from the people, they who have it cannot pass it over to others. The people alone can appoint the form of the Commonwealth . . . The power of the legislature being derived from the people by a positive voluntary grant and institution can be no other than what the positive grant conveyed, which being only to make laws and not to make legislatures, the legislature can have no power to transfer their authority of making laws, or to place it in other hands."

Again:

"If a Legislative Union should be so forced upon this country against the will of its inhabitants, it would be a nullity, and resistance to it would be a struggle against usurpation and not a resistance against law." (Aty Gen. Saurin, Mar. 15, 1800.)

The attempt, therefore, of the Irish Parliament of 1800 was to delegate to the British Parliament the right to legislate for Ireland, to pass its trust to another legislative body. The matter cannot be put more clearly than it has been by the British Historian Lecky, who stated that the Irish Parliament elected in 1797,

"when there was no question of a union, transferred its own rights and the rights of its constituents to another Legislature, and that was accomplished without any appeal to the electors by a dissolution." (Lecky, Hist. of Eng., in 18th Cent., p. 321.)

The Act of Union was never referred to the Irish people for their assent. That such referendum is essential to its validity, may at once be seen, by consulting the portions of Chief Justice Marshall's opinion in McCulloch vs. Maryland, quoted above.

The precise effect of such attempt of the Irish Parliament may be most concisely summed up in the words of Daniel O'Connell, as follows:

"The Union is totally void in point of principle and of constitutional force * * * The Irish people nominated them (the Parliament) to make laws, and not legislatures. They were appointed to act under the Constitution and not annihilate it. Their delegation from the people was confined within the limits of the Constitution, and the moment the Irish Parliament went beyond those limits and destroyed the Constitution, that moment it annihilated its own power, but could not annihilate the immortal spirit of liberty, which belongs, as a rightful inheritance, to the people of Ireland * * * The Union is not supported by Constitutional right * * * The Union, there * * * is totally void * * * is an unconstitutional law * * * is not fated to last long." (Daniel O'Connell at Mullaghmast, 1843.)

"It (the Union) was no compact, no bargain, but it was an act of the most decided tyranny and corruption that was ever yet perpetrated. Trial by jury was suspended * * * court-martial sat, throughout the land * * * and the County of Kildare among others flowed with blood." (Daniel O'Connell at Mullaghmast, 1843.)

(c) THE RIGHT OF DAIL EIREANN TO LEGISLATE FOR IRELAND.

The right of Dail Eireann to sit and legislate for Ireland, to bring about a change in government, proclaiming the Irish Republic, has been questioned as being unconstitutional exercise of power. It rests solely and squarely upon the sovereignty of the Irish people, whose will was made so manifestly clear by the December, 1918, elections.

Ample precedent for such right of the Dail Eireann is found even in England. In 1660 the "Parliament," abolishing the commonwealth and restoring Charles II. as King, was assembled by writs not running from the commonwealth. The acts of that "Parliament" have been held valid. After James II. fled from England about ninety of the lords petitioned William of Orange to issue writs for a convention. Though without authority from the government of James II., this was done, and its acts declaring James II. to have abdicated and declaring William and Mary King and Queen, were held valid. These two "unconstitutional" conventions wrought most important changes in England's government. The Dail Eireann has a far stronger constitutional basis, and its claim of effecting a change in the form of Ireland's government is far more sound than the claim of the above mentioned English conventions or "Parliaments."

The falsity of the analogy between the Civil War of 1861 and Ireland's present assertion of her right to recognition is, therefore, manifest. In America it was a voluntary agreement deliberately entered into by the people of a single nation, and an attempt to break that agreement. The Act of Union and its effects concerned the people of two nations. In Ireland there was no voluntary agreement by the people, but an ultra vires act of an unrepresentative Legislature secured by means of fraud, bribery, corruption, coercion and duress, ineffective to surrender Ireland's sovereignty, and a constant denial of the validity of the act, and a persistent effort upon Ireland's part from that time to date to assert and maintain that sovereignty.

(d) ULSTER AND SECESSION.

The analogy of secession is true, however, if applied to the northeast portion of Ulster in its attempt to be "partitioned" from the rest of Ireland. In this situation there is Ireland, a geographical, economic, political and national unit; there is the attempt of a portion of the Irish citizenry, the Irish people, to set at naught the will of the majority, to separate a portion of the nation's territory from the rest of it, and to set up a new State.

Ireland has always been a unit. It was never a federation of sovereign states, such as we had prior to 1789 in the colonies. There is less justification then for Ulster's separation movement than there was for the attempt of the Southern States in 1861.

The Irish people constitute one citizenry, one people. The Ulsterites are Irish, and have been for centuries. The Ulsterites in the northeastern portion of the province must fall into one of two classes:

1. IRISH CITIZENS.
2. BRITISH COLONISTS.

If they are Irish citizens, true democracy requires that the political minority subordinate its will to that of the majority. Democratic government and institutions can exist and survive only upon the basis of majority rule. The rule of the minority is oligarchy. If the Ulster Unionists fall into Class I., they must abide by the will of the majority of the Irish citizenry, which is overwhelmingly against "partition."

If they fall into Class II., they are "aliens" in Ireland, and as such aliens have no right to any say as to what the form of government in Ireland shall be, or what territory shall be within its jurisdiction. They would have no more right to a voice in Ireland's government than an unnaturalized alien has in the government of the United States.

In either event Ulster's demand for "partition" is unconstitutional and secessionist. It is only to this situation that the argument of "secession" can apply.

Straw Hats Going Up; Japs Blamed

New York, April 17.—Men's overhead charges are to be high this Summer, it was learned from members of the National Association of Straw Hat Manufacturers, which has just concluded its annual convention.

The charges are to be higher than the hats' crowns, which fashion has decreed shall be low. Members of the association "passed the buck" to Japan for the advance in straw "lids," declaring that $1.50 and $2 a day is now the wage of Japanese straw workers, whose twelve-hour day heretofore were rewarded with a wage of ten cents. The new hats are to have broad brims.

LAWRENCE BOOKS 'BELITTLE U. S.'

Histories in School Falsified in Behalf of Great Britain, Probers Allege

Lawrence, April 17.—Absolute proof of pro-British and pro-League of Nations propaganda has been found in the Lawrence public schools, according to a committee of local friends of Irish Freedom.

In a public report to Mayor William P. White, the Mayor is scored for his alleged failure to assist the committee in its investigation, and is urged to "take control of the public schools out of the hands of the National Security League and place it back in the hands of the Lawrence School Board."

The committee charges that the National Security League is superceding the school officials, particularly in the case of the Oliver School. It charges that un-American textbooks are in use, in which "history is falsified" in behalf of England, and "American traditions are belittled."

Books and periodicals named as objectionable include: "Current Events," bought by the pupils of the grammar schools; the National Security League handbook, "War Facts and Peace Problems"; "School History of the United States," by Dr. Albert Bushnell Hart; "An Elementary History of Our Country," by Eva Marsh Tappan; "I Am an American," by Sara Cone Bryant, and the war book, "Lest We Forget."

"ENGLAND MORE DEMOCRATIC."

Assailing "Lest We Forget," the committee quotes the following excerpts as propaganda:

"England is really more democratic than the United States."

"Shoulder to shoulder, the Americans and British fight for the freedom of mankind everywhere."

Scoring Dr. Hart's history, written to "give Great Britain a square deal," the report refers to him as of the advisory council of the Sulgrave Institution, a "British organization with an American branch."

It quotes Dr. Hart: "As we look back, it is hard to see where the colonists were oppressed or robbed. The colonists were proud of being Britons. They were as well off as any people in the world."

Sara Cone Bryant's "I Am an American" is dismissed as almost altogether propaganda. The report quotes the following sentiments:

"The American flag still kept the color of England in its red stripes."

OMIT WAR OF 1812.

"The War of 1812 is very cleverly omitted from the list of our wars. No reference whatever is made to it.

"The foundation of American character was laid by the English.

"English is the language of the King James Bible, one of the most wonderful books in the world, the book which has helped to form all American literature."

The publication "Current Events," is declared part of the school propaganda because of support in its columns of "The League of Nations." It is charged that speakers invited to discuss "A League of Nations" have "too often taken the British instead of the American view of Ireland's right to freedom."

Much space in the report is given over to caustic criticism of the National Security League and its activities. Disposing of this phase of school propaganda, the report demands "what right any organization of separate character has to furnish funds to (run control) any part of the American school system?"

Mayor White is considering the report, which was signed by Thomas J. Herlihy, president of the Lawrence branch of the Friends of Irish Freedom. It is understood that some action is contemplated by members of the City Council.

GIVE PLAY AT NEWTON CHURCH

"Miss Fearless & Company," a three act drama, was successfully presented by the Senior Girls' Club of St. Paul's Church in the parish auditorium, Newton Highlands.

Jack Eggleston and James Reading, two members of the parish Sunday school and the only male members of the cast, took well in their parts as Alias and Alibi, the silent sisters.

Miss Katherine Taylor, president of the club, played the leading role of Miss Margaret Hennely, the heiress. Miss Rosamond Jones played the chaperon and Miss Jeanette Wriggley appeared as Katie O'Connor, a servant.

NEW ARMY PROBLEM FOR WISE EXPERTS

Chicago, April 17.—Why should a man without a left eye be barred from military service? That is what Anthony J. Howard, of Decatur, wanted to know when he was rejected by the Marine Corps. "I don't see why you won't take me," said Howard. "Don't you have to squint or close the left eye when you shoot. I wouldn't have to waste any motion doing that. You need modern efficiency methods in your service, I can see that."

RENT EXPOSE IN BROOKLINE

Representative Hays to Tell Tenants of Excessive Charges for Homes

Don't forget—Town Hall, Brookline, next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. That's the time and place of the mass meeting to consider the rent profiteering question in Brookline, and every resident of that section should plan to attend.

Representative Martin Hays and other speakers will tell of the appalling situation in regard to rents and profiteering which exists generally throughout the Commonwealth, and of the cases in Brookline and the nearby districts which, brought to his personal attention, led him to give this great problem a thorough study in search of remedies for it.

He will explain in detail the provisions of his rent bill, now under consideration by the joint Committee on Judiciary, which goes into executive session on the bill on Wednesday.

In the face of declarations of members of the General Court that they do not feel there is any crying need for legislation which will bring relief to the tenants of the Commonwealth, and that a member of the committee passing on these measures represents Brookline, the importance of a large turnout of Brookline residents at next Tuesday's meeting cannot be overestimated. Here is the one big chance for the rent payers of Brookline to show that they are interested in this problem which so vitally affects their pocketbooks.

It is expected that definite plans for the big torchlight parade and mass meeting in Boston, in which it is hoped every rent payer of Greater Boston will participate, will be announced within a few days.

Every effort is being made to complete these plans as speedily as possible, and representatives of organizations desiring to participate who have not already notified the Rent Editor are requested to do so without further delay.

It is expected that every public spirited organization of Greater Boston will take part in the parade, the most unique affair of the kind ever held in the Hub, and the sole means of proving to the members of the General Court the need for quick action in regard to rent profiteers.

As soon as the arrangements are complete instructions to individuals who wish to participate will be printed in order that they may know just where to fall into line.

Mrs. S. T. Blood, president of the West Concord Woman's Club, will present the Hays Rent Bill to her club members for indorsement.

"In view of the complaints and the conditions in Boston and elsewhere, I feel that action is demanded," said Mrs. Blood. "Something should be done. I am in sympathy with the purpose of Representative Hays and the Boston American, and will be pleased to see that the bill is brought before the club."

Mrs. Herbert B. Hosmer, president of the Concord Woman's Club, is in favor of legislation to curb the obstreperous landlord.

"I am very much in favor of a bill of this kind," she said. "Rent distress is everywhere, confined to no one locality. I have the greatest sympathy with the people who are bearing, in unjust rents, more than their share of the present high cost of everything. I am sorry that my club has closed for the season, as I know our members would have been much interested in taking action on the Hays Rent Bill."

Mrs. Agnes H. Parker, retiring president of the Women's Relief Corps, will present the Hays Rent bill to the incoming president of that organization, for action as to its submission to the corps. Mrs. Parker told the American that she considered any bill framed to relieve present conditions worthy of serious attention.

"Any bill to relieve the tension existing between tenant and landlord," said Mrs. Parker, "is a good bill in my opinion. The rent situation in our country has approached a national crisis. If any bill can relieve present conditions it should have the indorsement of any organization appealed to."

K. C. YACHT MARAYA NOW AT LIMA, PERU

New York, April 17.—The Knights of Columbus 90-foot auxiliary yacht Maraya has covered the first lap of its long trip to Lima, Peru. The crew of ten, under Captain Alfred Gannell, all were recruited at the Knights of Columbus Employment Bureau.

MOTHERS' BILL REPUDIATED

Miss Spencer Says Maternity Measure, as Reported to Legislature, Is Ineffective

Miss Edna Lawrence Spencer of Cambridge has written a letter to the American repudiating the maternity benefits bill reported in her name by the joint committee of the Legislature, composed of members of the Social Welfare and Public Health Committees. The letter reads, in part:

"The bill as reported by the committee is, in effect, the same as that filed by Representative Benjamin Loring Young. It does away with the clause limiting the benefits to those to whom the cost of confinement is a serious burden and gives the benefits to all women regardless of financial need; it eliminates cash benefits; it omits the clause to hold the father of an illegitimate child financially responsible. Any bill without these provisions is wastefully extravagant, is not properly effective and encourages illegitimacy. I therefore find myself unable to support the report of the committee.

"The fact that the bill, as reported, carries an appropriation of only $200,000 yearly, means that the act would be inoperative for the greater part of the year, for to meet its sweeping provisions it would in all probability cost between four and five million dollars annually."

Miss Spencer thanks the joint committee and its chairman "for their courtesy and fairness, and announces her intention of asking that her original bill be substituted for the bill reported, when the report comes before the Senate Ways and Means Committee.

BAPTISTS TO TELL OF THEIR ACHIEVEMENTS

Ten thousand Baptist churches will observe Denominational Day Sunday. Preparations will be made for the New World Movement campaign for $100,000,000 which will be conducted from April 25 to May 3. Special stress will be laid on the achievements of the denomination in America and foreign lands. Men and women from Roger Williams, founder of the first Baptist church in Rhode Island, to the present time will be remembered and their accomplishments held up as an example to the church membership.

BUTLER'S EMPLOYES' COSTUME PARTY TONIGHT

Costumes of many different nations and periods of history will be seen this evening at the costume party of Butler's Employes' Mutual Benefit Association, to be held in Huntington Chambers Hall, No. 30 Huntington avenue. The Butler baseball team, members of the Athletic Club, will appear in uniform. Prizes will be awarded for the best costumes. A. E. Flint, A. B. Rice and A. Bacon will be guests of honor, and the festivities are in charge of A. Saunders, T. F. Young and A. O'Reilly.

WRECK CAUSED BY POOR WRITING ON TRAIN ORDER

Brattleboro, Vt., April 17.—The cause of the train collision on the Rutland Railroad, near Bellows Fall, March 14, which resulted in the death of ten persons, was negligence of a train crew in running past a station and the illegible handwriting of a station agent on a train order, according to the finding of the State Police Service Commission.

GETS DIAMOND RING ON WORTHLESS CHECK

Springfield, April 17.—Detectives are searching for a man who passed a worthless check for $1,000 on the Stackman Jewelry Company. The check was drawn on the Commercial Trust Company and given in payment for a diamond ring. The stranger gave the name of Edwin W. Taylor and claimed to be the general auditor of the Fisk Rubber Company.

GIVES UP HUSBAND TO "OTHER WOMAN"

Los Angeles, April 17.—Blanche Silkman, the twenty-year-old Winthrop girl, whose courtship by Julius Schrieber, wealthy New Orleans merchant, involved a divorce and a jail term here, was married yesterday to the man who has been the centre of so much trouble for love of her. Mrs. Schrieber secured the divorce from her husband at Miss Silkman's request.

CLINTON TO VOTE ON SUNDAY SPORTS BILL

Clinton, April 17.—The Selectmen today called a special meeting of the voters for Tuesday evening April 27, to take action on the adoption of the Sunday sports bill. All three members of the board, James C. Hopkins, Austin J. Kittredge and Joseph S. Ellam, are in favor of adoption.

1,000 K. C. GOING TO FRANCE IN AUGUST

The Knights of Columbus Lafayette Convention in New York August 3 promises to be the largest convention ever held by the organization. On August 5 1,000 Knights will sail for France, where they will present the statue of Lafayette, the gift of the society.

DRIVE BY CHURCH IN INDIA AND EGYPT

Leaders in the United Presbyterian Church are to begin a drive for funds in India and Egypt similar to that planned in this country from April 25 to May 2, according to a statement by representatives of that denomination in the Interchurch World Movement. The committee arranging for the campaign includes Rev. Dr. J. Mills Taylor, Mrs. H. C. Campbell and J. M. Prugh.

Songstress to Wear Four New Gowns

LYDIA LIPKOWSKA.

By all accounts Lydia Lipkowska's concert tomorrow night at Symphony Hall will be a fashion show as well, for the beautiful Russian proposes to wear no less than four gowns as well as the celebrated wigs of gold and silver, of which so much has been written. Madame Lipkowska will have the aid of Jacques Hoffman, the violinist of the Boston Symphony, at her recital. Her program ranges through Italian, French, Russian and English selections.

LOEW'S ORPHEUM THEATRE

A stupendous program has been arranged for the coming week at Loew's Orpheum Theatre. It is brimful of good things. A spectacular and artistic condensation of operatic song sketches will be offered by the Artcraft Revue, introducing the world's famous operas. A cast of eight renowned singers will appear. Arthur J. Finn & Co. will offer a bombardment of laughs in their military travesty, "Bagpipes in the Trenches." Other acts include Winn Shaw and Lester Bernard in their hilarious laugh skit, "The Mosquito Trust."

GORDON'S OLYMPIA

Vivian Martin, at her best, as the pampered pet of society, marries a country boy whom she thinks she loves.

How he fights to bend her to his bidding and how, though fighting back, she finally give in, is most absorbingly unfolded in "Husbands and Wives" from the famous novel by Cora Harris.

Heading the splendid bill of vaudeville are Burt Gordon and Jess Ford in their 1920 sensation, "Recital Classique." Following are Thiesse N's Dogs, novelty canine offering; Allie Young and April in "Bubbleland."

TREMONT TEMPLE

"In Old Kentucky," the film edition of the classic of the American melodramatic stage, which begins its third week at Tremont Temple Monday, should by its phenomenal success go far for the regeneration of the American stage.

LOEWS COLUMBIA THEATRE

Dustin Farnum heads the bill for the coming week at Loew's Columbia Theatre in "Durand of the Bad Lands." Harry Morey will also be shown in "The Darkest Hour," in addition to the usual amateur acts.

NIGHT AND STUDENT CAR SCHEDULES CHANGED

In order to alleviate the traffic congestion during the morning rush hours caused by the heavy travel of incoming commuters and high school pupils on their way to school, the Boston Elevated has effected a change in schedule on the routes most used by the school students.

During the morning hours cars will be run direct from Norfolk street to Huntington and Longwood avenues and also to Park square, via Columbus avenue. Cars will leave Norfolk street for Longwood and Huntington avenues at 7:54, 8:02 and 8:12. Cars will leave Norfolk street for Park street via Columbus avenue at 7:58 and 8:16 a. m.

Beginning today changes are effective in the night car service from Dorchester, Norfolk street, Grove Hall and Mattapan.

Night cars will leave Adams square for Ashmont street hourly from 12:30 p. m. until 5:30 a. m., via Warren street, and at 5 a. m. by way of Hampden street. Cars to Norfolk street, by way of Hampden street will run every hour from 1 a. m. to 4 a. m., and to Grove Hall, via Warren street, at 12:30, 12:45, 1:00, 1:15, 1:30, 2:30, 3:30, 4:30, 5:18 and 5:30 a. m. via Hampden street, at 12:45, 1:30, 2:00, 3:00, 4:00, 5:00, 5:18 and 5:30 a. m.

GEN. EDWARDS WARNS OF BOGUS COLLECTORS

Major-General Clarence R. Edwards, commander of the Northeastern Department, wishes to inform business men of Massachusetts and New England that he has no authorized personal representative, who it has been reported has been soliciting funds in the interests of ex-service men through downtown business offices.

The intelligence department of the army headquarters warns the public that an unknown man has been canvassing funds in Boston the past week for a Y. D. club at Providence.

File Jarvis Inventory

An inventory of the estate of Millicent Jarvis of Concord, who died October 3, 1919, has been filed. The estate is valued at $26,618.15.

CORTOT SOLOIST AT SYMPHONY

French Pianist Is Outstanding Feature of Fine Program by Orchestra

By FRED J. McISAAC.

Alfred Cortot, the French pianist, was soloist at the Symphony yesterday, and had the signal honor of playing two solo numbers. The first was the Beethoven Concerto No. 3 in C minor, for pianoforte and orchestra, and the second was Debussy's Fantasy for piano and orchestra.

Cortot is a sterling pianist, a man of agreeable personality, broad knowledge and prodigious technique. His playing of the Beethoven work was brilliant.

The Debussy fantasy was played for the first time in America. Debussy is dead and they have been going through his waste basket. This fantasy was written by him in his student days, and is a work of no particular distinction. What the composer thought of it is evidenced by the fact that it was written in 1890 and didn't get a performance until 1919. Cortot finds it to his liking, and as a novelty it passes well enough.

The familiar Fidelio Overture of Beethoven began the concert, while it was ended by excerpts from "Coq D'or," by Rimsky Korsakoff, some very brilliant and fascinating music, which was superbly performed under the baton of Monteaux, who is at his very best in Russian works.

The orchestra itself seems to have recovered from its recent indisposition, and I defy any but a pedant to discover any tonal difference between the band of yesterday and that of a couple of months past.

MODERN AND BEACON

The management of the Modern and Beacon has been very fortunate in their bookings for next week as they have obtained two features new to Boston, either of which would be shown alone in the usual run of pictures houses. However, the Modern and Beacon are continuing their policy of presenting two pictures for the price of one and will continue to do so this coming week even with such attractions as "Duds," starring Tom Moore, and "The False Road," starring Enid Bennett.

"Duds" is the filmization of the Saturday Evening Post story by Henry C. Rowland and has for its hero a discharged army officer.

"The False Road" is a story written especially for screen presentation and introduces Enid Bennett in the role of a crook who is finally won away from "the false road" by her lover.

CAMBRIDGE CENTRAL SQ.

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at Gordon's Cambridge Central Square Theatre, the United Picture Theatres of America, Inc., will present Dustin Farnum in Alexander Dumas' "The Corsican Brothers."

There will also be five all-star acts of vaudeville, including Lad and Betty Shannon in "A Vaudeville Surprise"; Ubert Carlton, the Black Gob; Meyers and Hanford, two boys from Arkansas; Nikko Trio, a Japanese novelty; and Hart and Burns, novelty songsters.

LOEW'S GLOBE THEATRE

Mildred Harris Chaplin, in "The Inferior Sex," will head the bill for the first half of the coming week at Loew's Globe Theatre. Much has been said lately about the wondrous charm and beauty of this petite star and throngs of her admirers will flock to see her latest picture, which Louis B. Mayer has presented in a most sumptuous manner.

IRISH DRIVE CARRIES ON

Boston Societies to Hold Meetings Sunday to Celebrate Its Success

Boston Irish and kindred societies will tomorrow hold jubilation meetings in all sections of the city over their success in raising funds for the Irish bond certificate drive, which will be officially closed April 25.

Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald of Boston and Miss Minnie Mulrey of Revere will be the speakers at a meeting tomorrow night in the Stoughton Town Hall in the interest of the drive which will open in that town and continue for a week.

Attorney Thomas H. Mahony of Boston and James M. G. Fay, president of the newly-formed Boston branch of the Friends of Irish Freedom, will be the principal speakers at a jubilation meeting in Knights of Columbus Hall, Somerville, tomorrow night, under the auspices of Mount Benedict Council of the Knights of Columbus.

Needham supporters of the bond drive will meet tomorrow night in Knights of Columbus Hall, Needham, and listen to addresses on the Irish cause by Miss Monica Foley and Mr. Kenney of Lexington.

Efforts are being made by the American Commission on Irish Independence to start a drive in Hopkinton. Patrick J. Keenan, an official of the New Haven road in that town, bought a $10 bond at headquarters and called attention to the desire in that section to "help the cause."

Worcester is scheduled to hold a street parade Monday in honor of the success of the bond drive in that city. John F. Harrigan, president of the State Branch of the Friends of Irish Freedom and director of the bond drive, is in charge of the arrangements. All Irish and kindred societies are expected to participate.

Miss Margaret Rooney, in charge of the tabulation of returns at bond drive headquarters, reports that committees representing organization in all sections of the State are compiling lists of subscribers to the fund which will be made public at the close of the drive.

SOLLAY SQUARE OLYMPIA

The interest of local theatregoers has been aroused to an unusual pitch by the announced appearance at the Scollay Square Olympia, beginning Monday, of the latest Universal-Jewel master-feature, "The Virgin of Stamboul," with Priscilla Dean as the star, and directed by Tod Browning.

It has been nearly a year since Priscilla Dean has flashed on a local screen, and her return is everywhere pronounced as a triumph.

"The Virgin of Stamboul" was written especially for Miss Dean by H. H. Van Loan, and the author has endeavored to paint a picture of "the wickedest city in the world."

WALDORF THEATRE

The coming week at the Waldorf Theatre is marked by two excellent musical comedy tabloids, that for the first half of the week being "Quite a While Ago," which will be shown in conjunction with a large feature picture new to this city. Beginning Thursday the Waldorf Musical Comedy Company, headed by Danny Lund, will present "Sixty-Four," another new comedy with music and dances. The usual shorter films will be shown throughout the week.

UPHAM'S CORNER STRAND

Two passenger trains rushing at break-neck speed toward each other furnishes a thrill in "My Lady's Garter," a Maurice Tourneur photoplay, which is coming to the Upham's Corner Strand Monday.

RED SOX RESUME BATTLE WITH SENATORS AT FENWAY PARK TODAY

TEAM WEAK IN RESERVE MATERIAL

Barrow Seemingly Has Pitching Strength Enough to Keep Boston Americans in Race

By NICK FLATLEY

A damp day of rest having allowed memories of the hectic opening of the baseball year at the Fenway to pass into oblivion, the Red Sox and Senators were ready to go to it this afternoon and show that they have teams that must be considered in the dear old dope.

The few games of the season mean very little, anyhow. The athletes have not got onto the hang of things, good diamonds are a bit strange, and pitchers are just beginning to put their whole energy back of the ball when they run home. It takes at least a week for a club to get thoroughly ironed out, and only in case of a consecutive run of victory or defeat does the break of the barrier affect things along in September.

Judging the Red Sox right now is out of the question, though most of their practice games have shown that the club has a good defence when getting good pitching. When the hits are flying thick and fast, as they were when the rookies were chucking in the South, any old team looks weak.

But, on the face of things, there seems to be enough potential strength on the clubsto make it troublesome for a lot of more highly rated outfits. To be sure, a few outfielders must be collected promptly and more punch is needed, but lacking said requisites, the Fenway collection of pastimers has enough of the necessary class to stand a lot of campaigning.

Real Strength of Club Depends on Pitching

The real strength of any club depends on its pitching, and the Sox right now apparently are well fortified in box. Russell and Leonard, to begin with, are as good a pair as any club could ask. Hoyt has the earmarks of a regular, Jones seems himself again, and Bush has undoubtedly recovered the hurling use of his right arm. This gives the corps of four good performers for a starter, with Harper likely to discover real control any time. And any club with five consistent heavers and a good defence is not easy to best.

We watched the Sox play the Giants twice over at the Polo Grounds, and break even. Both games were close and fast. The Boston infield and outfield looked up good box work, with the same smooth and calm consistency that stamped the Sox teams of old.

The team is weak in reserve material, but unless injuries cut in, can go a long way in the company that will be showing here for the next few days at least.

Senators Trying All of the Time

These Senators who are with us today, are a confident bunch, the first aggregation of the kind that C. Griffith has piloted in quite a stretch of years. He has erased the stodginess that has been a recent Senatorial bandicap, and has a flock of birds who are trying, whatever else may be said of them.

It is the belief of those who have watched the boys from the capital that the club will provide much stiffer opposition on all fronts than has been the Washington mode of late. This idea seems to prevail quite generally in both leagues, which augurs a season that will be spotted with plenty of scrappy baseball.

Samuel Jones, reputed to have recovered his 1915 efficiency, appeared to be the logical Red Sox choice for the festivities of the P. M., while the hostile troubles were to be visited on either Erickson or Schact. The former is the chap, who was with Detroit a couple of years, and expected to work wonders. He never did acquire control, and so was passed along. But this may be his year.

The Sox had a lot of batting practice yesterday, with Harper taking a long spell on the pitching beak. No efforts are being spared to make Harry collect accuracy. If he ever gets that, he'll win a bagfull of ball games.

STEEL LEAGUE IS AT IT AGAIN

Outlaw Organization Can Make Matters Very Interesting for Organized Baseball

By SAM P. CARRICK.

The Steel League is at it again.

An offer was made to Joe Lewenger of the Braves immediately after that young man twirled shutout baseball against the Giants, but Joseph promptly turned a deaf ear to the pleadings of the outlaws, according to authentic reports.

Apparently Wally Schang, the suspended Red Sox catcher, listened, as he was carded to play shortstop for the Lebanon team against Reading today.

Frazee has threatened to get out an injunction, but it was dollars to the ball-room dandruff, bolsh that he Boston backstop performs as per announcement.

Organized baseball has met and conquered, or compromised with, many foes in the past and will likely enough triumph and meet half-way much opposition in the future, but, in the Steel League, the pilots of the Grand Old Game are running afoul of about the most powerful obstacle possible.

Control Is Merely a Matter of Money

Control in baseball, as in everything else in this world, is a matter of dollars. That is why the major leaguers annually tell the minors where they get off and get on, and the magnates are able to enforce the one-sided, though not always unfair, contracts which the ball players are obliged to sign before they are entitled to receive remuneration in the exercise of their chosen profession.

There can be no manner of doubt that the Steel League has good backing, far better backing than any similar enterprise has yet had, and if the men behind the pens that sign the checks are enthusiastic enough they can corral about any player they choose to go after.

A battle for control between the Steel League and Organized Baseball would be a very interesting spectacle for the public, not to mention the incidental profit that would accure to the jumping-jack players.

But it would be very painful to the magnates.

ROXBURY CLUBS IN SUNDAY GAME

One of the first big Sunday baseball games will take place at the William Eustic playground, orfolk avenue and Shirley street, Roxbury, tomorrow. The contestants will be the Roxbury Red Sox and the Tammany Club. This will be the first of a series of three games to be played with the Roxbury Red Sox. It is expected that a large crowd will attend. Representative Daniel J. Gillen, the father of the Sunday Sports Bill, will throw out the first ball. The second game of this series will be played on Patriots Day on the same playground.

HARVARD SCHOOL TENNIS TOURNAMENT MAY 15, 17

Dates for the twenty-ninth annual tournament of the Harvard interscholastic lawn tennis championship in singles on Jarvin Field, Cambridge, have been announced as May 15 and 17. First and runner-up prizes will be given the winners of the racquet series. It is expected that many schoolboys from the local prep schools and entries from Exeter, Andover, Middlesex, Westminster and others will be received at Cambridge.

B. U. FRESHMEN GIRLS WIN BASKETBALL GAME

Freshmen girls of the College of Liberal Arts won their first basketball victory of the year at Boston University by beating the juniors, 15 to 14. The 1921 team was not in good trim for the contest, one of the star forwards being out of the game.

Rudolph Groomed to Set Back the Giants in Final Tilt of Series

New York, April 17.—Rain and cold weather prevented the Braves from taking a third wallop at McGraw's camp, following the two clean-cut victories, and there is no telling to what heights the Braves may rise while they are in this mood.

The series ends today. Dick Rudolph being carded to make it three straight for Stallings. Dick, in former years, used to be the only Boston pitcher the Giants treated with respect, but this year the Braves have already shown McGraw a few pitchers who could make the Giants jump through hoops.

George Washington Grant, the Boston owner, is elated over the fine showing of his team. "I knew the Braves were a greatly improved ball club," said Grant, "but they have looked even better than I thought they would.

"I'm not afraid of our pitchers either. They are the least of my worries. If the rest of the club stands up as well as the pitchers, we will be fighting for the pennant."

The Braves' fielding in the two games played here has been commented on most favorably. The Boston team has played two games without making an error, rather an unusual showing in this kind of weather and on a soft field.

CHANGES IN WILLIAMS BASEBALL SCHEDULE

Williamstown, April 17.—Several changes have been announced in the schedule of the Williams baseball nine for the coming season. Because of the late arrival of Spring in the Berkshires, the opening date with Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute has been set for April 24 instead of April 21, as originally planned. The game with Worcester has been shifted to April 28.

Coach Davis has made another cut in the varsity squad, which has now been reduced to twenty-one men. The following players remain:

Captain Boynton, Mason, Burrows, Patton, McLean, Prim, Burger, Nichols, Field, Smith, Holmes, Dewey, Richmond, Hoyt, Roth, Ward, Moule, Stevenson, C. Boynton, Clark, Noble, Harder, Beckett.

TECH JUNIORS WIN INTERCLASS MEET

The Tech interclass meet went to the juniors who, with a total of 69 points, had a seven point margin over the sophomores. The freshmen rolled up 22 points, while the seniors scored but one.

Two school records were equalled and one was broken in the meet. George Dandrow broke the hammer throw record with a toss of 129 feet. The previous mark was 120 feet 10 inches.

LONDOS READY FOR STECKER

"Scissors Never Had Any Terrors for Me," Greek Champion Declares

"Stecker's body scissors-hold never had any terrors for me, and I proved that when I met him in New York," declared Jim Londos, the Greek hurricane, who is to wrestle the big Nebraskan in Mechanics Building on Monday night.

"I broke the hold repeatedly until Joe gave up trying and then shifted his method of attack and finally got me with another hold entirely. I had my mind centered on that body scissors-hold and we caught napping. Hell never get me again, and now that I am again in the full possession of my powers I feel as confident that Stecker will find a difficult proposition on Monday night."

Stecker Beats Lewis With Body Hold

New York, April 17.—Joe Stecker won the championship wrestling match from "Strangler" Lewis in three hours, four minutes and fifteen seconds at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory.

EAGAN AND THOMAS AT COMMONWEALTH A. A.

Joe Eagan of Dorchester will oppose Battling Thomas of Boston in a twelve-round bout at the Commonwealth A. A. Monday night. Eagan has been resting up since the fight he had with Mike O'Dowd recently and he feels confident that he will be able to put Thomas away.

There are three eight-round bouts. In the first Jack Mulvin, the fighting policeman, will take on Red McNeil of Dorchester; in the second Johnny O'Brien of Roxbury will go over the jumps with Teddy Murphy of the West End. For the other eight rounder Young Dempsey of the North End will swap punches with Freddie Clark of Jersey City.

B. C. SOPHOMORES WIN IN INTERCLASS MEET

The sophomore class at Boston College walked away with interclass honors at Brighton Heights with a total of 65 points. The freshmen were second with 26, juniors third with 23, and the seniors last with 13 points. The feature of the meet was the performance of Bill Dempsey, captain of the track team who scored 12½ points for the senior class. Jake Driscoll won both the 220 and 880-yard runs.

Olympic Luncheon

President Gustavus T. Kirby of the American Olympic Committee will meet a group of New England men interested in Olympic team matters at an informal luncheon Tuesday noon in Young's Hotel. Kirby will be in Boston for the big B. A. A. Marathon race.

Roller Polo Results

Lowell 9, New Bedford 2.
Fall River 6, Worcester 2.

Harvard Tennis Team to Leave for South

The Harvard tennis team will start on its invasion of Southern territory tomorrow morning, when they leave for Providence, where the first match of the season is slated with the Agawam Hunt Club. The Richmond Country Club will be played on Monday.

The Crimson team then takes on successively the Norfolk (Va.) Country Club, Annapolis, the Chevy Chase Club, Washington; the Baltimore Country Club and the Philadelphia Country Club.

PLAN INTERCITY GOLF TOURNEY

Public Links Players of Boston, Worcester, Hartford and Stamford May Meet

By ROBERT E. HARLOW.

S. Wales Dixon, supervisor of recreation of the Department of Parks for the city of Medford, expects to have four New England cities lined up this Summer for a municipal golf championship tournament. The cities he has listed are Hartford, Worcester, Boston and Stamford. There are public golf links in each of these cities.

Mr. Dixon was active before the war in forming the National Municipal Federation, which held their annual municipal golf links team championships, Chicago winning twice and St. Louis once. The Hartford and Worcester teams reached the final round in this competition, but Hartford lost to Chicago in 1914 and Worcester to St. Louis in 1916.

He says that the expense of transporting municipal links teams from East to West was such a burden in the years the event was held that there is some doubt as to a national championship be held this year, but he is certain that a New England championship can be made a success. His plans are not completed at this time, but he hopes to have a meeting of representatives of the various cities within a few weeks to decide upon a program.

The public links golfers of Boston have never been represented in the municipal links competition as the Dedham Country and Polo Club is one of the new sensations of the ring. He knocked out Joey Fox, Bobbie Dempsey, Jimmy Goldstone and Benny Valger. Josephs believes he can dispose of the new comer, but it looks as if he has selected a mighty tough assignment.

The other scrap will be between Al Grant and Jimmy Hogan. When these boys met in this city recently, Hogan was awarded a close decision. Many of the fans thought Grant should have been a draw. As a result Roy Green put on a wise move and rematched the pair.

Michaels Is Due in Boston on Monday

Jack Michaels is due to arrive in Boston Monday to complete training for his twelve-round scrap with Jimmy Frizetti of South Boston, which will be staged by the Armory club at the Grand Opera House Tuesday night. Michaels is a big Boston favorite as a result of his two over Charley Parker and his torrid bouts with Benny Valger.

Frizetti and Cahill On at Quincy Club

The Columbus A. A. of Quincy has arranged an attractive card for Monday night. Jimmy Frizetti of Brockton and Billy Cahill of Everett will furnish the thrills in the featherweight of twelve rounds. Both boys are stout-hearted warriors and should put up a rugged battle.

"PORKY" FLYNN WINNER OVER JACK RENAULT

Dan ("Porky") Flynn of Boston defeated Jack Renault of Canada in a twelve-round bout at the Dandelion A. C. The former piled up a big lead in the first few rounds and, though the Canadian tried to force matters in the last four frames, won the verdict by a wide margin.

Johnny Brown of Newport, R. I., won from Frankie Mack of the South End in the eight-round semi-final. The prelims were short. In the first Benny Tarallo of Port Street stopped up Tony Mack of Dorchester in one round, while Young Mitchell, South End, disposed of Young Bova, North End, in two rounds.

DAVE POWERS WINS FROM HAYWARD BRIGGS

Brockton, April 17.—Dave Powers of Malden defeated Hayward Briggs of Brockton at the Participation A. A. Mickey Donovan of Brockton won from Greek Alger, Roxbury, in ten rounds.

West End House Run

The West End House will hold its annual cross-country run for members of the club on Monday. The course is from West End House to Charlesbridge street, around the Charles River Basin to the Harvard Bridge and back to the clubhouse, a distance of three and one-half miles.

AGAIN KLOBY IS THE FAVORITE

Lawrence Battler Picked to Defeat Britt; Odds of 10 to 8 Offered

By JACK CONWAY.

Funny thing the way the betting fraternity makes favorites. They boys with the big bank rolls are wagering 10 to 8 that Young Kloby beats Franklin (Young) Britt in their twelve-round bout at the Atlas A. A. of Lawrence Monday afternoon.

All this on top of the fact that Britt recently gave Kloby a boxing lesson at Mechanics Building. Kloby has been installed a favorite chiefly because the fans throughout the Merrimac Valley believe he's unbeatable. The writer saw these sides take wager 10 to 9 that the Y. B. champion would beat Johnny Dundee.

You can hardly blame fellow up Lawrence way for backing Kloby. It is safe to say they have made around $200,000 betting on him. He is as good an investment to them as steel stocks were to some of our popular young profiteers during the war.

Kloby has prepared himself carefully for the holiday battle which is another reason he has so many backers. When the Y. B. champion is in condition, he is a mighty hard proposition to beat. Let him be overweight and it is another story again.

Britt, of course, believes he will finish in front. He says he knows too much about the fine points of the game for his opponent. The last Kloby-Britt bout seemed to prove this contention.

Boston fans can secure reservations at the office of the Fenway A. A., No. 216 Washington street.

Fenway A. A. Arranges Another Fine Card

The Fenway A. A. has arranged a sparkling all-star card for its show at Mechanics Building next Wednesday night. The feature bout will be between Paul Doyle of this city and Nate Siegal, classy Revere lightweight. Doyle recently handed Barney Adair a neat trimming. Siegal has been traveling on high for some months. Among other things he held Eddie Shelley even.

The tussle between Bobby Jeanes and Young Chaney is as attractive as the Doyle-Siegal affair. Chaney, who by the way is not the George Chaney of Providence fame, is one of the new sensations of the ring. He knocked out Joey Fox, Bobbie Dempsey, Jimmy Goldstone and Benny Valger. Josephs believes he can dispose of the new comer, but it looks as if he has selected a mighty tough assignment.

The other scrap will be between Al Grant and Jimmy Hogan. When these boys met in this city recently, Hogan was awarded a close decision. Many of the fans thought Grant should have been a draw. As a result Roy Green put on a wise move and rematched the pair.

Brown Announces Four More Entries

Secretary Brown of the B. A. A. announced four additional entries. They are George B. Moss, Westbury, Long Island; H. J. Fifield, Norwood; C. W. Greenway, Dorchester Club, and Anthony Terry, M. A. C. A. They bring the list of entries to seventy-four. Brown has received telephone calls from several others and expects a total entry of eighty. Olympic Commissioners Barrow S. Weeks, Frederic W. Rublen, Gustavus Kirby and Samuel J. Dallas, who will name the men for the Olympic Marathon team are due in town tonight or early tomorrow, and will journey over the course Sunday afternoon.

Simultaneous Chess

A simultaneous exhibition of chess will be held in the Boston Chess Club on Saturday evening, April 24, given by Harlow Bally.

FIFTY-FIFTY IS ONLY NEW SHOW

Mothers, in naming boys, should exercise great care and discretion because they can never tell what this offspring will grow up to become. When Herbert Corthell's mother bander him she probably visualized him in his young manhood as a long, slender poet with a lily in his hand.

Instead? Well, as Daniel Webster once said about Massachusetts, "There she stands." There Corthell stands and you can see for yourself he wouldn't go well with a lily.

Nevertheless the ponderous hero of "Fifty-Fifty," which comes to the Shubert Monday, is making a hit with the girls. According to the press agent, a very honest and truthful person named H. P. Hill, there is hardly a day that three or four messenger boys do not carry mash notes to Herbert, inviting him to sit on their laps and be their lootle woodzie. He accepts them all.

"You never can tell," explains the hero. "Some of them might be good looking at that."

"Fifty-Fifty" is a good old farce transformed into a musical comedy. Corthell's presence in the line-up indicates that there are probably lots of laughs in it.

Different Kinds of Music.

What would you think of a man who started out to study French or Spanish and after a few lessons quit his task and tried to make you believe those languages were no good.

These people who go to hear a symphony concert or wander in upon high-class operetta and report adversely are about as ridiculous as the chap who says foreign languages are no good.

The fact is that music is a language which we all study a little. Most of us do not progress beyond the primer, which is in words of one syllable and which is styled "popular music." The man who says he likes "popular music and has no use for the highbrow stuff" is classifying himself as a primary school scholar.

The reason such a man can whistle a tune which he hears for the first time in a vaudeville show or a popular musical comedy, is that the person who wrote the tune made it simple intentionally. Just as the school teacher says "I see the cat. The cat sees me."

While these sentences are unquestionably good English, they wouldn't carry on along very far in a literary discussion.

Really good tunes cannot be picked up and whistled the first time they are heard, even by a person with a keen ear. They are elusive, unusual in their intervals, lovely because they are unhackneyed. Really good opera can be heard half a dozen times by a good musician and at each hearing new beauties unfold.

The score of "Monsieur Beaucaire" is scholarly and ingenious and "Only Solomon," Persis Wilson's love music and know something about it are able to appreciate what Messager has done and enjoy it, but it is a trifle above the primary grade. On the other hand, Beaucaire is not heavy. Some of the airs are as musical as those of Sir Arthur Sullivan, though the orchestration is a little more elaborate than in the Gilbert and Sullivan operettas.

"Honey Girl" for Broadway.

Announcement is made from the New York office of Sam H. Harris that "Honey Girl" now at the height of its popularity at the Majestic Theatre, will open in New York, engagement at the Colan & Harris Theatre, on Broadway, Monday, May 3.

The Boston engagement, therefore, will close with the Saturday night performance, May 1, at the Majestic Theatre.

It was due to the efforts of the Messrs. Shubert that the run of the three weeks were added to the Boston engagement, inasmuch as they took immediate action on learning of its being temporarily without a home and successfully keeping the musical comedy hit of the season in Boston.

He pulls the Strings.

In all productions of the size of "Jack O'Lantern" there are persons who are indispensable, but whom the spectators never see, such as property masters, electricians and property men. In the Fred Stone show, besides them, there is one young man who sits crouched on his legs for about ten minutes, and who contribution is a large measure to the comedy of "Jack O'Lantern." His name is Mark Freeman, and he is the young man who manipulates the strings and other accessories that enable the turkey to dance the tango, the fish to fly from the dish to the bowl of water, and the frankfurt to get up and bark. All this is done in the scene where Mr. Stone, as Jack, is starving to death little Babbie and Bobbie—or pretends to.

All during this period Freeman sits like a tailor at work, pulling his strings and watching for the cues to fall from Stone's lips. For this work Freeman receives a salary so large that it would be acceptable to many an actor of prominence, for it was he who helped Charles Aldrich and the producers in reviving the frisky Freeman is still a young man, but he has been identified with many of the pantomimes in London and the English provinces, and was for some time a clown at the New York Hippodrome.

How Courtenay Got In.

When Oliver Moroso accepted the manuscript of "Civilian Clothes" from the author, Thompson Buchanan, he had no idea of unlikking the play as a starring vehicle for William Courtenay—in fact, he had selected a play called "The Clam Digger" for him and called the actor to New York to consult with its author.

When Mr. Courtenay arrived, "Civilian Clothes" was in its second week at the Moroso Theatre. He saw the play and, when the curtain came down on the last act, turning to Mr. Moroso, who occupied a box with him, he said: "I will, you would accept the play you have in mind for me and send me to Chicago and Boston in 'Civilian Clothes.'"

"That can't be done," replied Mr. Moroso. We would have to call your company the number two and you would never stand for that."

"You can call my company the number five, if you don't like it," was Courtenay's rejoinder. "The part is made to order for me, and it is the only play I have seen since leaving the lot that made me wish for another act after the final curtain came down."

The conversation resulted in Mr. Moroso organizing a company to support Mr. Courtenay in "Civilian Clothes," and the attraction was sent to the Olympic Theatre, Chicago, where it remained for three months. Mr. Courtenay's success in Chicago was so pronounced that Mr. Moroso arranged for the coming engagement at the Park Square Theatre. He decided to present the play in Boston with a cast de luxe. He found that William Courtenay, Enid Sylvester, Isabel Irving, Arthur Albertson and others of the New York company were superior to those players enacting the same roles in the Chicago cast, so he ended the run of "Civilian Clothes" in New York and combined the strength of both companies.

Graduate of the Wool Business.

That learned Roman who originated the proverb, "After the male of one book," must have been a reporter for the Home Evening Gazette, for his wisdom could only have resulted from long experience in interviewing lewis-awakened authors, play wrights, actors and critics of all kinds. Which makes the experience of meeting Arthur Richmond, author of "Not So Long Ago," at the Plymouth Theatre, both novel and refreshing.

The average playwright, and particularly the average author of a single play acts and talks like a cross between a peacock, an ostrich, a fullback, and an intoxicated owl. And the worse his production is the more he struts and talks about it.

Richman is shy, he reminds one of his own hero in twentieth century clothes. He has no theories of the drama, no desire to reform the stage, no criticism of the players, none of the profound quality of the university trained great American dramatist.

He is not enthusiastic about himself, and without ambition he can be separated from the following facts: Born in New York three four years ago. Went into the wool business instead of to college. Wrote short stories.

Miss Binney Preaches.

Constance Binney, the demure little lady who is the feature in "39 East" at the Wilbur Theatre, is terrifically worried about the stage. Who is lured into great, wicked cities by romantic ideas, Miss Binney, who is just as young and as charming as she seems in the play, feels that despite her tender age she should warn such girls. As a result, which is both her fountain pen, and finding it inkless dictated the following to a stenographer:

The Girl Who Comes to the City.

"Our outlook has changed since those days in the '0's and early '90's," (Miss Binney evidently uses the pronoun editorially) when the whole village gathered at the depot with omnibus shaking of heads and clanging of stage bears to prophesy dire things for the innocent girl who started for the city to seek his fortune.

"Lack of space compels us to omit fourteen" paragraphs here. With apologies to Miss Binney we push on to the city proper.)

"I am not one of those, he it understood, who having come to the city and succeeded. Immediately raise their voices in wholesale invitation to all to come and do likewise, or with those who, having failed to attain the maximum of success with the minimum of effort, wail in Cassandra tones of warning against the metropolis. Simply because the lights of the city attract many moths who come but to singe their wings is no reason for banishing artificial illumination. Let the girl who would come be sure that the answering light in her own heart is not merely the glitter of ambition, but rather the true glow of steady, steadfast purpose.

"For those who did not believe the dainty Miss Binney capable of this poetic peroration, we submit that Miss Binney's pen is a very eloquent attorney. Both will tell.

SHUBERT THEATRE

The Shubert Theatre management announces as its attraction, beginning with Monday matinee, what is confidently expected to be a new departure in the comedy with music realm, "Fifty-Fifty."

"Fifty-Fifty" is from an original comedy by William Gillette, with an adaptation made by William Lenox and Margaret Mignels, while the lyrics and music are from the pens of those clever writers, Harry Carroll, Harold Atteridge, Arthur Swanstrom and Carey Morgan. This quartet of writers have turned out what Philadelphians called a daintily different, musical comedy.

"Fifty-Fifty" is said to be brimful of humorous situations, and music of the whistleable kind, and the girls are pretty and daring in their actions and attire. It is distinctly different and stands out alone, inasmuch as it has a plot—a real plot—something which is a average run of this brand seldom has. Mr. Herbert Corthell heads the large organization, which includes Rollin Gebner, Jr., Jack Pollard, Frank Wunderlee, Arthur Allen, Ruth Wells, Doris Arden, Claire Greenville, Dorothy Quinnette and the Misses Rene and Helen Gosman, known as the "Gosman Twins," and many old and new favorites in the realm of music.

KEITH'S THEATRE

At Keith's next week there will be an all-star holiday vaudeville bill, with Rae Samuels and Percy Bronson and Winnie Baldwin as co-headliners. Rae Samuels is known as "the blue streak of vaudeville," her work is so fast and full of changes in mood and character so sudden and astonishing. She runs through the whole gamut from pathos to burlesque, and is artistic and finished in all her work.

Percy Bronson and Winnie Baldwin, who share headline honors with Miss Samuels, give their idea of how things are going to be in the U. S. A. about fifty years hence, in a skit entitled "Visions of 1976." Mere man will be a very meek and submissive creature by that time and the business of the world will be conducted by "The New Woman."

Eddie Vogt will be seen in "The Love Shop," with Harry and Grace Ellsworth. This is "a rhapsody in velvet, silk and lace." Some beautiful models play an important part in this act.

ARLINGTON

George V. Hobart's dramatization of David Graham Phillips' novel, "Susan Lenox; Her Fall and Rise," with Alma Tell, will be the attraction at the Arlington Theatre, beginning Wednesday, April 28, presented by Messrs. Lee and J. J. Shubert. As dramatized by Mr. Hobart, and presented under the title of "Susan Lenox," it is in three acts and eleven scenes.

"LISTEN LESTER"

"Listen Lester," John Cort's exhilarating musical comedy, gorgeously gowned and full of spontaneous wit, comes to the Colonial for a limited engagement of three weeks only, beginning Monday evening, April 26, to inject new life and brilliancy into the theatre district. "Lester" is not only worth listening to, but is well worth looking at as well, as has been attested by the fact that this play comes to Boston after a full year's run at the Knickerbocker Theatre in New York and ten weeks in Chicago. Harry L. Cort, Georges E. Stoddard and Harold Orlob have written a merry melange that is bright and snappy.

The cast is headed by Ada Mae Weeks, and including such other players as Fred Holder, Ruth Mahee, Alan Edwards, Joe E. Brown, Emma Carroll, Karl Stuckey, Grace Vesacy, Rene Brown, Grace Park, Dorothy Duncan, the Four Entertainers, and a chorus that is dainty, dancey and altogether delectable.

TECH SHOW

"Patsy," the twenty-second annual Tech Show, will be the attraction at the Arlington Theatre at the matinee and evening performances Patriots' Day and the following evening. Particular interest attaches to the show this year, and this interest has been reflected in the demand for seats for the three performances, the house being practically sold.

This year's production is notable in a number of ways. For one thing, "Patsy" is produced under the auspices of John Craig, Mary Young and H. Graham Gribble, who have schooled the young players in their parts, and who also advised its author, H. Coleman Carver. An unusually elaborate ballet, "Nuit d'Orient," is a feature of "Patsy." Miss Virginia Tanner having originated and directed this.

MALDEN AUDITORIUM

"Erstwhile Susan" is scheduled as the special holiday attraction for next week at the Malden Auditorium. "Erstwhile Susan" is one of the outstanding successes of recent years, on both the legitimate stage and the screen, and is the supreme triumph of the long and brilliant career of Mrs. Minnie Maidern Fiske.

BENEFIT BOX OFFICE MEN

Both branches of the "service" will be represented in a benefit performance which will be given at the Wilbur Theatre, Monday evening, April 26, when through the courtesy of the Messrs. Shubert, the proceeds of that evening's performance of "39 East" will be given to Harry Holt and Arthur Manley, the treasurer and assistant treasurer in the box office of this theatre.

When their country's call came for service in the war with Germany, Harry Holt enlisted in the U. S. army and saw strenuous service overseas; Arthur Manley enlisted in the U. S. navy and helped chase "U" boats on the Atlantic coast.

"OUI MADAM"

The long run of eleven weeks of "39 East" at the Wilbur Theatre will close Saturday night, May 1. It will be followed on Monday evening, May 3, with a new musical comedy entitled "Oui Madam" with Georgia O'Ramey in the leading role.

CODMAN SQUARE THEATRE

A rare and delightful treat is in store for the patrons of the popular Codman Square Theatre the coming week. For the first half of the week Gladys Brockwell will be seen in "The Devil's Riddle," which is a spectacular love drama with deep and impelling interest. Miss Brockwell is one of the foremost emotional actresses of the cinema world and has a great following. Four acts of vaudeville will please the many patrons of this theatre.

HOLLIS CONCERT

Messrs. Cook, Fetherston and Murphy of the Hollis Street Theatre offices are busily engaged in arranging for the Sunday concert which will be given under their management and for their benefit at the theatre on the evening of April 25 at 8 o'clock. Bookings already made assure an excellent entertainment of nearly three hours' duration, with an enlarged orchestra on hand to furnish the music and accompany the singers. There will be a long list of good acts, in which artists from the principal theatres will participate. Tickets are now on sale at the Hollis box office.

PARAGON PARK

Pleasure seekers taking trips down the harbor tonight on the Nantasket boats will find the Paragon Park dance hall open. The dance hall of this justly famous resort opens tonight, and will be open every Saturday night until the regular opening of the long and brilliant career of Mrs. Minnie Maidern Fiske.

Paragon Park this season will be under new management, its direction having been taken over by the Paragon Park Company, of which Alfred A. Golden is president and David Stone treasurer.

TREMONT SUNDAY CONCERT

Sunday evening, April 25, will be a surprise night, according to the promises of David E. Dow, the manager, and Frank Orvitt and William Murphy of the box office staff of the Tremont Theatre, when they present their concert. The results of their efforts to obtain artists for the occasion are meeting with the happiest results, and already they announce they have several big names with a number of others to hear from.

CODMAN ORGAN RECITALS

One of the particularly bright features of the coming week at the popular Codman Square Theatre, Dorchester, will be the special organ recital by J. Arthur Geis, regarded as one of America's foremost organists.

NANTASKET BEACH

Frederick L. Lane, general manager of the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company, in a statement regarding the forecast for Summer business, predicts the largest season ever for Nantasket Beach, and the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company. All of the steamers during the past Winter have been entirely renovated, and the eight sturdy boats are now lying at the Nantasket Wharf, awaiting only the order to sail on Saturday.

SOMERVILLE THEATRE

"She Walked In Her Sleep" will be offered by the Somerville Players the coming week at their Davis Square Playhouse. This hilarious farce comes from the pen of the prolific Mark Swain and scored a big hit during its long runs in Boston and Chicago.

McISAAC says that

"MONSIEUR BEAUCAIRE," at the Tremont, will charm anybody with an iota of music in his soul. A musicianly score and a great singing company.

"NOT SO LONG AGO," at the Plymouth, is a sweet and simple little comedy of other days, with some very attractive people in it.

"BAB," at the Hollis, is a cheerful little affair and a field day for Helen Hayes, one of the cleverest of our young actresses.

WILLIAM COURTENAY, in "Civilian Clothes," Park Square, has a role which gives him every chance. The piece is sure to please the great majority of theatregoers.

"39 EAST," at the Wilbur, with Constance Binney and Henry Hull, is approaching the end of a well-deserved run. It's unpretentious but satisfying.

FRED STONE, in "Jack o' Lantern," is enjoying his customary prosperity at the Colonial. He is a whole show himself.

"HONEY GIRL" is to be yanked out of Boston at the height of its prosperity and put upon Broadway for a Summer's run. Last chances. Two more weeks at the Majestic.

MARY YOUNG, in "The Outrageous Mrs. Palmer," closes a remarkable run at the Arlington after one more week. The Tech show has the house the first two days, but after that Mrs. Palmer resumes until Saturday.

D. W. GRIFFITH GETS NEW HONOR

One of the greatest honors that could come to any man has been bestowed upon David Wark Griffith, noted motion picture producer, whose tremendous spectacle, "The Fall of Babylon" will be seen at the Orpheum Theatre the closing half of the coming week.

At the meeting of the Board of Historians, recently engaged in compiling the Standard Contemporary History of the Great War, it was unanimously voted to declare Mr. Griffith one of the greatest of war historians. This honor was conceded to Mr. Griffith because of his magnificent production, "Hearts of the World," in the making of which he spent more than eighteen months on the battlefields of France.

Mr. Griffith has opened up a new field of recognition for the historian who provides his history through the medium of the motion picture. "In future generations history must necessarily be divided into four epochs—Ancient, Medieval, Modern, and the Motion Picture." The Stone Age, the Bronze Age, the Age of the Printed Page, and the Film Age.

Anita Earned Her Pay.

There is no "bonkum" about the film version of Charles T. Dazey's famous melodrama, "Old Kentucky," at Tremont Temple. Anita Stewart actually had to go through all the death-defying stunts shown in the pictures, including the terrifying leap on horseback across the ghastly chasm.

In the stage version of the grand, old melodrama various expedients were resorted to to get thrilling effects without any danger to the actors.

And in the old days, when playgoers were less sophisticated and more imaginative this served very well, and the gallery gods hissed the villain, cheered the heroine and went home satisfied.

Fortunately in the films there are no impossibilities. Scenes merely talked about on the boards are actually carried out. Which is one reason why a screen production like "Old Kentucky" is really better than any stage production could be, and without more popular.

Artificial Snow Clad Cottage.

"What is so rare as a day in June?" warbled the poet. One answer is: Snow in Los Angeles. But it was quite necessary that Fred Niblo discover a field snowy white for several of the scenes in "The False Road," the new Ethel Barrymore picture, which is next week's attraction at the Modern and Beacon.

The action is supposed to take place during an old-fashioned New England blizzard. The ingenious Mr. Niblo, with the assistance of the Thomas H. Ince technical staff, arranged for the big storm to take place right in the midst of a little snowbanized cottage, that took exactly half a day to build, furnishing the background. And Mr. Niblo defies anyone to distinguish the artificial panorama from the genuine article.

How Turks Marry.

There are two ceremonies of marriage in Turkey—the legal and religious ceremony, and the social ceremony. At the former the bride is never present and then seen rarely, and both may be represented by proxies. The officiating parties are the two fathers or guardians, and the imam of the parish.

It was not customary in Turkey, before the recent war, for a bride to look into the eyes of her betrothed until he lifted the wedding veil from her face. The custom is still common, though in more advanced families acquaintance after, or even before betrothal occasionally is permitted.

In "The Virgin of Stamboul," the Universal-Jewel master feature to be seen at the Scollay Square Olympia beginning Monday, the author, H. H. Van Loan, has used the custom to great advantage, and it furnishes one of the most dramatic scenes in the photoplay. When Sari, the beggar girl, so wonderfully portrayed by Priscilla Dean, discovers that the man she has wed is none other than Ashmet Hamid, the sheik who murdered an American girl, the situation arouses a jolt which is certain to thrill an audience.

CHORAL PENSION FUND

Tomorrow will offer the last opportunity to non-subscribers to hear the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the most splendid vein before the season closes, for the two final pairs of regular concerts will soon be sold out. Tomorrow afternoon in Symphony Hall at 2:30, the orchestra and the magnificently trained Harvard Glee Club will join forces to give a momentous concert. Contrary to all traditions the chorus will be allowed to sing some of their favorite numbers as "encores." Another feature will be a flute solo (Minuet from Gluck's "Orpheus") by George Laurent, the first violinist, who is the pride of the orchestra.

NORUMBEGA PARK

With the return this season of Carl Alberta as manager of Norumbega Park a number of innovations will be made at this delightful amusement place. The coming season marks the twenty-fourth year of Norumbega, a pleasing feature of which will be the devoting of the big open air theatre entirely to motion pictures. The theatre will also have its motion picture auditorium remodelled to make room for a large orchestra, and here every evening programs of motion pictures and musical features, such as are given at the Strand and Rialto Theatres on Broadway, will be the feature.

BOSTON THEATRE

Geraldine Farrar will be seen for the first time in the great screen drama and spectacle, "Flame of the Desert," in the Boston Theatre next week.

RAISA CONCERT

Mme. Rosa Raisa, the world's greatest dramatic soprano, who is to sing at the Boston Opera House tomorrow afternoon, April 18, will be assisted by Giacomo Rimini, baritone, and Maye Waldor, violinist.

ADVERTISE YOUR WANTS IN THE BOSTON AMERICAN

This Day in Our History—April 17, 1920

THIS is the anniversary of the death, in 1790, of Benjamin Franklin, one of the most notable of Americans, whose career should be an inspiration to every poor boy. Of him it was said: "He snatched the lightning from the clouds and the sceptre from tyrants."

Wealth in Precious Stones

THE tendency to put money into precious stones, which always shows itself in times of social and industrial unrest, is showing itself more and more. Diamonds have enormously increased, with rubies, emeralds, sapphires and pearls.

THE YOUNG DIANA

An Experiment of the Future

Story of Extraordinary Mystery, in Which the Heroine Holds Key to Youth and Beauty

By MARIE CORELLI

"YOU will not—you cannot be cruel, Feodor!" she said, in a voice which trembled with suppressed alarm. "You will not injure the poor woman who works for you so patiently, and who trusts you!"

"How can I tell whether I shall or shall not injure her?" he demanded, almost fiercely. "Science accepts no half service. The 'poor woman,' as you call her, knows her risks and has accepted them. So far, no injury has been done. If I succeed, she will have cause to thank me for the secret I have wrenched from Nature—should I fail, she will not complain very much of a little more hurried exit from a world, where, according to her own statement, she is alone and unloved."

Pang of Remorse

Madame Dimitrius clasped and unclasped her delicate old hands nervously, and the diamonds in a ring she wore glittered scarcely more than the bright tears which suddenly fell from her eyes. Moved by a pang of remorse, he fell on his knees beside her.

Why, mother!" he murmured soothingly—"you should not weep! Can you not trust me? This woman, Diana May, is a stranger, and nothing to you. Certainly she is a kind, bright creature, with a great many undeveloped gifts of brain and character, which make her all the more useful to me. I give her as much chance as I give myself. If I let her alone—that is to say, if I ignore all the reasons for which I engaged her, and allow her to become a mere secretary, or your domestic companion—she goes on in the usual way of a woman of her years—withering slowly—sinking deeper in the ruts of care, and fading into a nonentity for whom life is scarcely worth the living. On the other hand, if I continue my work upon her——"

"But what work?" asked his mother, anxiously. "What results do you expect?"

He rose from his kneeling attitude and straightened himself to his full height, lifting his head with an unconscious air of defiance and pride.

"I expect Nature to render me obedience!" he said. "I expect the surrender of the Flaming Sword! It 'turns every way to keep the way of the Tree of Life'—but the hilt must be given into my hand!"

"Feodor! Oh, my son! Such arrogance is blasphemy!"

"Blasphemy? Mother, you wrong yourself and me by the thought! Blasphemy is a lie to God, like the utterance of the 'Credo' by people who do not believe,—but there is no blasphemy in searching for a truth as part of God's mind, and devoutly accepting it when found! The priest who tells his congregation that God is to be pleased or pacified by sufficient money in the collection plate blasphemes,—but I who most humbly adore His unspeakable beneficence in placing the means of health and life in our hands, and who seek to use those means intelligently, do not blaspheme! I praise God with all my heart,—I believe in Him with all my soul!"

His attitude at the moment was superb; his expression as of one inspired. His mother looked at him fondly, but the tears were still in her eyes.

"Feodor," she said at last tremulously—"I—I have grown fond of Diana. I shall not be able to look on and see her suffer!"

Bent His Brows

He bent his brows upon her, almost sternly.

"When you do see her suffer it will be time to speak"—he answered—"Not before! And whatever else you see, having no connection with 'suffering' in any way, you must allow to pass without comment or inquiry. You love me, I know,—well, you will never prove your love for me more than by consenting to this. If at any moment you can tell me that Diana May is unhappy or in pain, I promise you I will do my best to spare her. But if nothing of this sort happens I rely on your silence and discretion. May I do so?"

She inclined her head gently.

"You may!"

He took her hand and kissed its soft, finely wrinkled whiteness.

"That's my kind mother!" he said, tenderly—"Always indulgent to me and my fancies as you have been, I know you will not fail me now! And so — whatever change you observe or think you observe in my 'subject,' you must accept it as perfectly natural (for it will be) and not surprising or disturbing. And you must tactfully check the comments and questions of others. I foresee that Chauvet will be tiresome—he has taken a great fancy to Diana. And Farnese, of course, is a perpetual note of interrogation. But these people must be kept at a distance. You have grown fond of Diana, you say—fond of this complete stranger in our house!—but I am glad of it, for she needs some sort of tenderness in a life which seems to have been exceptionally lonely. Grow still fonder of her, if you like!—Indeed, it is probable you will. For though she is anything but a child, she has all a child's affection in her which apparently has been wasted, or has met with scant return."

"You think so?" And Madame Dimitrius looked up with a smile.

"I do think so, assuredly, but because I think so it does not follow that any return can come from me," he said. "You are a person of sentiment—I am not. You are the one to supply her with the manna which falls from the heaven of a loving heart. And by doing so you will help my experiment."

"You will not tell me what the experiment really is?" she asked.

"No. Because, if it fails I prefer to ridicule myself rather than that you should ridicule me. And if I succeed the whole value of my discovery consists in keeping it secret."

"Very well!" And his mother rose and put away her knitting. "You shall do as you will, Feodor! —you were always a spoilt boy and you will be spoilt to the end! My fault, I know!"

"Yes, your fault, beloved!" he said—"But a fault of instinctive knowledge and wisdom! For if you had not let me follow my own way I might not have stumbled by chance on another way—a way which leads——"

He broke off abruptly with a wonderful "uplifted" look in his eyes. She came to him and laid her gentle hands upon his shoulders.

"A way which leads—where, my Feodor? Tell me!"

He drew her hands down and held them warmly clasped together in his.

"The way to that 'new heaven and new earth' where God is with men!" he answered, in a low, rapt tone—"'Where there shall be no more death, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain!' Be patient with my dream! It may come true!"

CHAPTER XIII.

MEANTIME, Diana, up in her own room, was engaged in what to her had, of late years, been anything but an agreeable pastime—namely, looking at herself in the mirror. She was keenly curious to find out what was the change in her appearance which had apparently surprised Madame Dimitrius so much that she could hardly be restrained, even by her masterful son, from expressing open wonderment. She stood before the long cheval glass, gazing deeply into it as if it were the magic mirror of the "Lady of Shalott," and as if she saw

"The helmet and the plume
Of bold Sir Lancelot."

Her face was serious,—calmly contemplative,—but to herself she could not admit any positive change. Perhaps the slightest suggestion of more softness and roundness in the outline of the cheeks and an added brightness in the eyes might be perceived,—but this kind of improvement, as she knew, happened often as a temporary effect of something in the atmosphere, or of a happier condition of mind, and was apt to vanish as rapidly as it occurred.

Still looking at herself with critical inquisitiveness, she slipped out of her pale blue gown and stood revealed in an unbecoming gauntness of petticoat and camisole—so gaunt and crude in her own opinion that she hastened to pull the pins out of her hair, so that its waving brightness might fall over her scraggy shoulders and flat chest and hide the unfeminine hardness of these proportions. Then, with a deep sigh, she picked up her gown from the floor where she had let it fall, shook out its folds and hung it up in the wardrobe.

"It's all nonsense!" she said. "I'm just the same thin old thing as ever! What difference Madame Dimitrius can see in me is a mystery! And he——"

Here, chancing to turn her head ratherly quickly from the wardrobe towards the mirror again, she saw the charming profile of—a pretty woman!—a woman with fair skin and a sparkling eye that smiled in opposition to the gravity of rather set lip-lines—and the suddenness of this apparition gave her quite a nervous start.

"Who is it?" she half whispered to the silence—then, as she moved her head again and the reflection vanished, "Why, it's me! I do believe it's me!"

Amazed, she sat down to think about it. Then with a hand-glass she tried to recapture the vision, but in vain!—no position in which she now turned gave just the same effect.

"It's enough to drive one silly!" she said—"I won't bother myself any more about it. The plain truth is that I'm better in health and happier in mind then I've ever been, and of course I look as I feel. Only the dear Madame Dimitrius hasn't noticed it before—and he?—well, he never notices anything about me except that I do his work well, or well enough to suit him. If his mysterious 'globule' had killed me, I wonder whether he would have been really sorry?"

Shook Her Head.

She considered a moment,—then shook her head in a playful negative and smiled incredulously. She finished undressing, and throwing a warm boudoir wrap about her, a pretty garment of pale rose silk lined with white fur which had been a parting gift from her friend Sophy Lansing, and which, as she had declared, was "fit for a princess," she went into her sitting room, where there was a cheerful wood fire burning, and sat down to read. Among the several books arranged for her entertainment on a row of shelves within reach of the hand, was one old one bearing the title: "Of the Delusions whereby the Wisest are Deluded"—and the date 1584. Taking this down she opened it haphazard at a chapter headed: "Of the Delusion of Love." It was written in old style English with many quaint forms of expression, more pointed and pithy than our modern "newspaper slang."

"How many otherwise sober and sane pirsons are there," soliloquized the ancient author—"who neverthe-less do pitifully allow themselves to be led astray by this passion, which considered truly, is no more than the animal attraction of male for female, and female for male, no whit higher than that which prevails in the insect and brute world. For call it love as they will, it is naught but lust, as low an instinct or habit as that of craving for strong liquor or any wherewithal to still the insatiate demands of uncontrolled appetite.

"Love hath naught to do with Lust—for Love is a Principle, not a Passion. For this cause it is comforting to read in Holy Scripture that in Heaven there is neither marrying nor giving in marriage, for there we are as the angels. And to be as the angels implyeth that we shall live in the Principle and not in the Passion. Could we conceive it possible on this earth for such an understanding to be arrived at between two persons of intelligence that they should love each other in this highest sense, then there would be no satiety in their tenderness for one another, and the delicacies of the soul would not be outraged by the coarseness of the body.

"It is indeed a deplorable and mournful contemplation, that we should be forced to descend from the inexpressible delights of an imagined ideal to the repulsive condition of the material stye, and that the fairest virgin, bred up softly, with no rougher composition of spirit than that of a rose or a lily, should be persuaded by this delusion of 'love' to yield her beauties to the deflowering touch which destroys all maidenly reserve, grace and modesty. For the familiarity of married relations doth, as is well known, put an end to all illusions of romance, and doth abase the finest nature to the gross animal level. And though it is assumed to be necessary that generations should be born without stint to fill an already overfilled world, meseemeth the necessity is not so great as it appeareth.

"Wars, plagues and famines are bred from the unwisdom of over-population, for whereas the over-production of mites in a cheese do rot the cheese, so doth the over-production of human units rot the world. Therefore it is apparent to the sage and profound that while the material and animal portion of the race may very suitably propagate their kind, they having no higher conception of their bodies or their souls, the more intelligent and cleanly minority of purer and finer temperament may possibly find the way to a nobler and more lasting 'love' than that which is wrongfully called by such a name, —a love which shall satisfy without satiating, and which shall bind two spirits so harmoniously in one, that from their union shall be born an immortal offspring of such great thoughts and deeds as shall benefit generations unborn and lead the way back to the lost Paradise!"

Windows of the Soul

Copyright, 1920, by International Feature Service, Inc.

Did you ever try to see the shy, vanishing shape that looks out of those tiny faery windows in the eyes of those you love? When you look—angel or devil—the soul withdraws like a man drawing back from a window.——NELL BRINKLEY.

What's In a Name?

GRACE.

THE origin of the name of Grace is curious and somewhat imaginative. Several versions of its real derivation may be eliminated and the contention that it really comes from the Latin gratia, meaning favor, or bounty, accepted. It is through this interpretation that the Greek Charities have come down to us as the three Graces. Gratia was used by early Italian writers for divine favor, hence the theological meaning of Grace.

Copyright by Harris & Ewing

The English name Grace is intended as the abstract theological term and was adopted at the time of the Reformation. Its continuation is thought to be due to its popularity with the Irish, who think that it resembles their Graine (love). Grace and Gracie are both very popular in England and Ireland. Spain likewise has Engracia in honor of a maiden cruelly tortured to death at Zaragoya in 304, and Italy knows Grayce!la through Lamartine's pretty romances.

The most celebrated Grace was Grace O'Malley, also known as Graine O'Malley, a notable sailor chieftainess of the Southwest Coast. Once she came to visit Queen Elizabeth, and when the two met the high barbarian was more than a match for the civilized queen. She scorned Elizabeth's gift of a lapdog and offered the queen her own infant son, born on the voyage, saying that the queen was welcome to educate him, as he would never make a man of spirit, since his father came of bad stock.

Gracia is another charming form of the same name which is attributed to Spain.

The amethyst is Grace's talismanic stone. It promises her immunity from harm and disease, especially if it be set in gold. To one of high-strung nature, it has power to sooth and calm and enforce even temper. Saturday is her lucky day and four her lucky number. The primrose is her flower.

The Two Voices

By VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DE WATER

CHAPTER LIII.

IT was a very pale girl who faced Daniel Rodney a few days later, as he entered the library. Her attitude was rigid.

"Why—what is the matter?" the master of the house began, then, at a warning look, changed his question to—"what is Hugh doing sitting up so straight in a chair at this time of the evening? Usually you are all in by this hour, my boy."

Hugh replied without hesitation. "I know it," he said eagerly, "and, Dad, I am feeling a hundred per cent. better than I have at all since my accident. This dear girl,"—motioning towards the spot where Ruth stood—"has done me all the good in the world.

"I'm afraid I've been a mighty crusty customer to you and Laura for the past two days. But my evil spirit has left me now."

"Fine!" his father approved. "But you have not been ugly, Hugh,—only a bit depressed and down. And that's natural, dear lad."

"No, it is not natural," the invalid contradicted. "But I did not understand how things were until this evening. I mean—everything seemed crooked and gloomy. The evil spirit has been chased away,—and I will not let it get the best of me again. Just see if I do!"

"Where is that coffee you were going to have Hattie make this evening?" the parent demanded, his face lighting with pleasure as he noted his boy's happy mood. "Suppose we change the order to chocolate instead, and then Hugh can have some."

Without waiting for any demur, he rang for Hattie and gave his order. Twenty minutes later, when Laura came upstairs, she found the trio laughing and chatting over a pot of steaming chocolate and a plate of dainty cakes.

"Well, this does look festive!" she exclaimed. "Oh, Ruth, I am glad I got here before you went home."

Ruth explained why she had stayed so late. As she talked, she studied her friend's face. Laura's cheeks were flushed and her eyes sparkled. She had never looked prettier than at this moment.

"Where's your escort?" Hugh asked.

Laura flushed still more deeply. "Gone home, of course. I did not suggest his coming in, for I supposed everybody was asleep."

"Did you have a pleasant evening?" her father queried.

"Yes, indeed. A lovely evening!"

"Then the play was good?" Hugh suggested.

"Why no—not very—that is—well, we did not think it was very clever nor well acted," the girl stammered.

"Yes in spite of that you had a pleasant evening—eh, Sis?" Hugh teased.

Ruth came to her friend's rescue.

"It is late," she said, rising. "Mother will be wondering what has become of me. I must be going home."

"And I am promising myself the pleasure of acting as your escort," Mr. Rodney declared.

Protest was useless and Ruth went into Laura's room to put on her hat and coat. Her hostess accompanied her.

"You were good, dear Ruth," she commented, "to make it possible for me to get away this evening. But for you, I would not have been able to go."

"I was glad to come," Ruth replied.

"For that matter, but for you I would never have known Will Dayton as well as I do now," Laura continued.

Then she stopped, blushing. Ruth put her arms about her and kissed her impulsively.

"He is a good man, Laura," she said. "I am glad you know it."

"Oh, how dear and understanding you are!" Laura sighed.

Later, on the way home, Daniel Rodney spoke of the change in Hugh's appearance.

"Your influence over him is wonderful, Ruth," he said gratefully. "You can cheer him when nobody else can."

"It is because he thinks I am Doris," she said. "That is what troubles me, Mr. Rodney."

"I saw from your face that you were disturbed, my dear—but I did not know why."

"Yes—that is it—because he must know the truth before long—and then"——

She did not finish the sentences, and her companion spoke hopefully.

"At one time that would have meant disaster. Now it must, of course, mean suffering. But, please Heaven, not the destruction of his life."

"But the destruction of his happiness," the girl murmured.

"Not the destruction, we will hope," the father said. "I feel more confident of his returning vigor than I have at all since his illness. A little more of such improvement as is now evident and the danger line will be behind us. And, my dear, it is all because of you. We can never thank you enough."

"He will not thank me," she muttered.

Her companion appeared not to hear her. "Hugh does not yet know that a new specialist is to see him tomorrow. Yes"—at her start of surprise—"the man who has had him in charge wants his own opinion confirmed. Then, as soon as it is safe, Hugh must be told the truth."

Plumpness Makes Health
Thin People Heed This

If you are too thin; if you are pale and sallow; if what you eat seems not to strengthen you; if your lips and cheeks are colorless, it is because your blood is deficient in red corpuscles and disease can easily overcome you, as you have no reserve strength or nourishment to uphold you.

A pharmaceutical product, called 3-grain hypo-nuclane tablets, is much prescribed for these conditions, and if taken for several months, rapidly increases weight and improves the color. Buy in sealed package of any well stocked apothecary shop.—Advertisement.

The Widow's Lorgnette

By HELEN ROWLAND

Copyright, 1920, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

"THERE goes a blighted woman!" exclaimed the Widow, turning her little electric runabout into the park, with a bump that nearly catapulted the Bachelor through the windshield.

"I almost went after her," he complained reproachfully, grasping the seat with one hand and settling his hat with the other. "But—what has blighted her? Diana Travis, wasn't it?"

"She's got marriage-itis!" announced the Widow, in the tone usually applied to a deadly disease. "All for a home, a husband, a cookbook, a kitchenette—and the world well lost! Did you notice her feet?"

"Does it affect the feet?" inquired the Bachelor, politely. "I thought she had on nice, common-sense shoes."

"She did!" acquiesced the Widow. "Common sense! And she used to have the prettiest, neatest little feet in our set! And look at her hat! A year out of date—and picked up at a little shop around the corner, to begin with! And her hair! She's forgotten how to do it! That's the final sign of mental deterioration in a woman—to lose her interest in her hair!"

"I thought it was a sign of genius," protested the Bachelor. "The artist's and all the writeresses and painteresses run to bobbed hair and frowsy hair—and all that, don't they?"

The Widow pursed her lips scornfully, as she emerged from the park, barely grazing an astonished policeman and just missing a baby carriage.

"Frowsy hair on any woman is a sign of sentimental resignation!" she declared. "Until the day when she renounces her last hope of romance and her last spark of vanity, a woman will always do SOMETHING with her hair! Even the savage belle sticks daggers and ornaments and ivory prongs and things in her wool!"

"But not ALL wives let themselves slump!" protested the Bachelor. "I took a charming one to tea yesterday."

"Oh! The kind that bachelors take to tea don't count!" and the Widow waved one motor-gloved hand scornfully. "I'm not talking about the married coquette! It's the real wives—the happy wives—who talk like echoes and look like shadows of themselves after two years of domestic bliss! Why can't THEY retain a little of their vanity and preserve their personality, too?"

"Because they haven't GOT anybody to take them to tea, and flatter them, and tell them how cute and fascinating they are, and what lucky dogs their husbands are!" insisted the Bachelor triumphantly.

"Perhaps," admitted the Widow, slowing down and leaning back while the car glided along under the canopy of pale green leaves. "And, perhaps because they haven't any—competition! It might be a real charity for somebody to take their husbands to tea, now and then," and the Widow looked thoughtfully. "But they wouldn't see the point. They let their brains slump, too! They seem to be able to think about nothing but the laundry, and the price of beef, and the living room color scheme. They will get up right in the middle of a concert and go home, because they have a premonition that the maid forgot to send the rugs to the cleaner."

"Well, perhaps they're only trying to be dutiful and honest," began the Bachelor.

"Honest!" broke in the Widow. "It's NOT honest! Do you think it's honest to let a man marry you under the impression that you were born smelling of scented soap and ambre antique, and with your hair all marcelled—and then, when you have him tied and he can't get away, not to live up to your role? It's cheating!"

"Then the men cheat, too!" declared the Bachelor. "You can tell a married man a block off by the dullness of his boots and the unpressed look of his overcoat."

"Oh, yes!" The Widow sighed hopelessly. "I suppose it's just the steam roller of matrimony. No flattery to stimulate their vanity. No competition to rouse their spirit! It just flattens them out like—like a pair of punctured tires!"

"Maybe they're happy," speculated the Bachelor, with persistent optimism. "Happier than the women who rush around hectically to clubs and cults and lectures and beauty-parlors, and the men who spend half their time making money, and the other half 'keeping fit.'"

"Maybe," conceded the Widow, a little wistfully. "But how can a woman be contented—to be just "contented"? How can she be happy—to be "perfectly happy"? I wish I could do something for Diana."

"I'll tell you!" proposed the Bachelor, with a sudden bright thought, "I'll furnish the stimulation to her vanity——"

"What!"

"Take her to tea," explained the Bachelor. "If you'll furnish the competition!"

The Widow brightened, and then shook her head with a sorrowful little smile.

"They wouldn't APPRECIATE it!" she assured him. "People are SO ungrateful! And, besides, Diana Travis always was jeal—always misunderstood me!"

May-Time Brings Madness

Of course she shouldn't have gone to his rooms—of course it was absolutely mad and foolish to do what she did—but then, May-Time in New Orleans brings all sorts of madness with it. Fannie Heaslip Lea—never so delightful as in her love stories—has taken a lovely woman, a bunch of yellow roses, a man who calls bluffs, and some of this same May madness, and out of these she has made a story of "Delicious Indiscretion" for the April issue of Harper's Bazar. "Yellow Roses" it is called and Miss Lea has endowed it with that piquant quality which so distinguishes her work. The illustrations are done by Walter Everett.

All That Was Needed

The theatre was in an uproar.

"They're calling for the author," said the stage manager.

"Oh, but I can't make a speech!" replied the man responsible for the play.

The manager grabbed the trembling writer firmly and impelled him along the passage. As he shoved him toward the curtain he said curtly:

"Well, just go out in front and tell 'em you're sorry."

CLEANED THE POISONS FROM HIS SYSTEM

A MASSACHUSETTS MAN GRATEFUL

Somerville, Mass. A well-liked citizen of this city, who has suffered in the past, writes the following to Dr. J. F. True & Co.

"I have taken all kinds of laxatives, but none of it cleaned the poison from my system as your Elixir—will know what to use hereafter considering the effects it had on me, as I feel splendid now—all my system needed was a real cleaning which only your Elixir gave—other physics I have taken merely passed through my bowels." (Name on Request.)

Dr. True's Elixir has relieved thousands of sufferers during the last 69 years. Imagine a prescription actually lasting so long—doctors come and doctors go, but Dr. True's Elixir, The Family Laxative and Worm Expeller, which was given the world by Dr. True, is as of old, the best friend to be found in your medicine closet.

Symptoms of worms, constipation, swollen upper lip, deranged stomach, sour stomach, offensive breath, hard and full belly, with occasional gripings and pains about the navel, pale face of leaden tint, eyes heavy and dull, twitching eyelids, itching of the nose, itching of the rectum, short dry cough, grinding of the teeth, little red points sticking out on the tongue, starting during sleep, slow fever.

No Harmful Drugs—Recommended by Physicians. AT ALL DEALERS. Dr. J. F. True & Co., Auburn, Me.

Tissue Building

Tissue is the doctor's name for body cells.

It is to our bodies what coal is to an engine.

Every day we burn up a certain amount of tissue.

Therefore new tissue must be built to take the place of the lost fuel.

The food we eat makes this new tissue and in a healthy person gives enough fuel to replace the loss.

People get thin and "run down" because they do not get enough nourishment from their food to supply the needed fuel.

When the weakened system does not do its duty you must have a "tissue builder." Father John's Medicine is a real tissue builder because it actually makes new flesh and tissue.

When you take Father John's Medicine, the actual food elements of which it is composed give you new strength, and enable the organs of the body to resume their work.

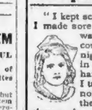
Father John's Medicine soothes and heals throat and is best for colds, bronchitis, asthma.

People gain weight steadily while taking it.

Remember, Father John's Medicine contains no alcohol or dangerous drugs. It has a history of more than half a century of success.

Miss C. Dion Tells How Cuticura Healed Eruptions on Head

"I kept scratching my head until I made sore eruptions. My scalp was sore and red, and I could not sleep at all nights but would sit up in bed and scratch. My hair became thin and dry. I tried many remedies but none were successful and the trouble lasted about three or four weeks. Then I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and I used one box of Cuticura Ointment with the Cuticura Soap when I was healed." (Signed) Miss C. Dion, Box 25, Ferrisburg, Vt., April 24, 1919.



You may rely on Cuticura to care for your skin, scalp, hair and hands. Nothing better to clear the skin of pimples and blotches, the scalp of dandruff and the hands of chapping. Make Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum your every-day toilet preparations and watch your skin improve.

Sample Each Free by Mail. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. E, Malden, Mass." Sold everywhere. Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c.

CITY WORKERS PROTEST EXCLUSION FROM BONUS

The exclusion of city and county employes from the benefits of the $1 a day war bonus bill because they had received the difference between their army or navy pay and what they received in civil employment was protested by the American War Veterans' Association of City and County Employes at a meeting in City Hall. Boston Representatives in Congress were asked to fight against this provision of the war and navy employes bonus bill in resolutions adopted by the association.

75 PER CENT. OF FIRES CAN BE PREVENTED

Seventy-five per cent. of fires in Boston are preventable if proper precautions are observed and rubbish and inflammables allowed to accumulate, according to Fire Commissioner John H. Murphy, and the Mayor's economists and police department are co-operating in the matter. The destructive branch is to be declared, a municipal clean-up week. The committee passed resolutions urging the school committee to reconsider its action in voting against the proclamation of the mayor of the public schools.

(SHOWN BELOW)

$150. In Eleven Awards—Every Day!

John H. Donlon

Bow St., Newton Lower Falls, Mass.

Will be paid $100 for the "best last line" of

LIMERICK No. 61

The completed Limerick reads as follows:

Women "cops" will be quite a "treat,"
With their uniforms snappy and neat,
But—should strikes come along,
And they beckon the throng,
In the arms of the law we'd look sweet.

Mr. Donlon is a resident of Bow street, Newton Lower Falls, who is to receive the $100 award for writing the "best last line" to Limerick No. 61 as considered by a committee of intelligent readers, each one in a factory in Boston. He is very well known in the Newton Lower Falls district, having lived there practically all his life, is married and makes his home with his mother-in-law, C. F. Jones.

Mr. Donlon was not at all surprised to hear that he had written the "best last line" for the Limerick, but he was very much interested and gratified to hear that his letter had actually chosen from among the thousands received. When asked to explain, he ordinarily replied, "Aw, the final sentence of the Limerick just came to me, and I thought it was a pretty good one, so I sent it in." Mr. Donlon is employed in the office of the Newton Lower Falls Gas Light Co., and has been there for the past 15 years. He is married and has one child, a daughter, who is now attending the Lasell Seminary, Auburndale. Mrs. Donlon is a member of the Newton Lower Falls Woman's Club, and is also interested in church and charitable work. Mr. Donlon is a member of the Newton Lower Falls Lodge of Elks, and is also interested in church and charitable work. RULES:

1. The Boston American is publishing a daily incompleted Limerick, and $100 will be paid for the "best last line" sent in by its readers completing Limerick. The one next "best last line" will each be awarded Five ($5.00) Dollars. This makes a total yearly award of One Hundred and Fifty ($150.00) Dollars. In the event of more than one person sending in the same "best last line," similar awards will be made.

2. No one is barred from participating except employes of the Boston American and their families, who are absolutely barred. No one may send in more than one "best last line" to each Limerick.

3. The blank printed herewith is for the convenience of the readers and the Editors, but you do not have to use this particular blank.

4. Each Limerick appearing in the Boston American will have a number and the "best last line" must be sent in a sealed envelope, by mail, addressed to "Boston American Limerick Department, P. O. Box 235, Boston 3, Mass." On the outside of each envelope containing the "best last line" must be written or printed "Limerick No. ——." This is most important. Each "best last line" must be received by the Limerick Department by 12 o'clock noon, four days after publication. Announcement of each award will be made in the Boston American one week after publication of each Limerick.

5. The Boston American reserves the right to make any change in or addition to these rules that may be deemed necessary for fairly and properly conducting the competition, and the decision of the Boston American Limerick Editor on any question which may arise will be absolutely final, and the entering of a participant is a complete acceptance of all conditions and regulations now made or to be made.

Stocks Close Heavy in New York; Most Issues Show Losses

PRICES EASED OFF QUICKLY

Liberty Bond Recessions Attributed to Selling by Big Corporations

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor.

Stocks were irregular in New York at the close, but the majority were off and prices averaged at about the lowest when the market ended. Trading was of fair volume and without unusual incident. Weakest stocks were Atlantic Gulf, Baldwin, Mexican Petroleum, Crucible, Republic Steel and General Motors. They closed from one to nearly nine points below Friday's final quotations. General Motors receded the most.

Among issues to end with gains were American Safety Razor, Punta Alegre, Reading and General Electric. They were up from one to little more than a point. The market tone was heavy after the start. Profit taking was general where it could be obtained. Foreign exchange rates were firm at the opening, francs and lire advancing.

BEGAN WITH ADVANCES.

The market was stronger at the start, but changes ruled small and strength was not long maintained. Prices quickly began to ease off and the market was irregular at the end of an hour. Early trading was without feature. Very little demand for stocks from the outside was reported and the professional element confined itself largely to readjustments. The 8 per cent. call rate holds over until Monday and it is reported that an influx of Western funds into New York resulted from the high rates of the week and has enlarged the amount available for stock market purposes. A little easier situation is looked for next week because of redepositing in banks of the money withdrawn around April 15 to meet government obligations.

LIBERTY BOND WEAKNESS.

The downward trend of Liberty bonds is causing much discussion and bond houses report that is is not wholly due to selling by small investors. Corporations and large investors are understood to be realizing on these securities in order to obtain cash for business needs or to obtain higher interest by reinvesting proceeds in other directions. A New York dispatch received in Boston this morning reads:

"The disposal by the General Motors Corporation during the past year of about $28,000,000 of Liberty bonds is pointed to by bankers as an indication of what is taking place in the Liberty bond market. High rates for money are also forcing Liberty bonds out of bank loans." The 3½ issue, which was especially weak Friday, are mostly held by large investors and taxpayers.

More Gold Shipments

Gold is still being shipped out of this country. The latest coin withdrawals in New York for export were $300,000 for Mexico and $500,000 for Cuba. The total for Cuba since March 2 is $1,750,000. It is largely for payments on sugar.

Federal Loans to Farmers

March loans to farmers by Federal Land Banks totalled $9,703,290, and the money was secured by 2,456 long-time first mortgages.

Cotton Market

New York, April 17.—The cotton market opened firm, 13 to 25 points higher. Reports of rain in the belt contributed to the advance. Liverpool and short buying of near and distant months was another factor. After advancing 22 to 30 points over yesterday's close, the list receded a few points, but at the end of twenty minutes was still steady and close to the top. Opening prices were: May, 42.40; June, 41.25 bid; July, 39.90; August, 38.15 bid; October, 36.85; December, 35.555; January, 34.65; February, 34 bid; March, 33.65.

New York Sub-Treasury Loss

New York, April 17.—The sub-treasury lost $6,331,000 to the banks on Friday.

FIRST NATIONAL IS LARGEST BOSTON BANK

The First National Bank of Boston is not only the largest in this city, but first in New England, and when its additional issue of $7,500,000 stock was paid in this week it climbed to the fifth place among banks of the country. Its capital is now $15,000,000, and when surplus and undivided profits are added the total is $37,078,000.

It is surpassed in such resources only by the National City Bank of New York, the Bank of Commerce of New York, the First National Bank of New York and the Continental and Commercial of Chicago.

MOVE TO INCORPORATE N. Y. STOCK EXCHANGE

A move has been made to force the New York Stock Exchange to incorporate, and the bill being prepared will give the State control over the bourse. The measure is the result of agitation over the "corner" in Stutz stock and charges made by Allan A. Ryan.

A proposed bill provides for the appointment by the Governor of New York of a commission of six members, consisting of three representatives of the public and three of the Legislature, and this body would have supervision over the stock exchange.

Large Cotton Receipts

Cotton receipts at New England mill centres during March are said to have broken records. For New Bedford, Fall River, Lowell, Lawrence and Manchester they totalled 125,000 bales, aside from Egyptian cotton. In the corresponding 1919 month receipts amounted to 55,964 bales, and they totalled but 57,942 in February, 1920.

London Living Costs

According to the Labor Gazette, a London publication, the cost of living in that city is almost 40 per cent. higher than it is in the United States, and the London Statist states that it has trebled since 1914.

NORTH BUTTE A LEADER HERE

Boston Market Has Strong Tone, But Local Price Movement Is Irregular

The price movement was irregular at the opening of the Boston exchange, but the undertone was good and the majority of active issues showed gains early in the session. The market verged on being strong, in fact. North Butte was the feature for activity and strength. It sold at 21⅛, its highest for the year. It was up 2¾ at its best.

United Fruit was weak, receding four points on a few transactions. Packing issues showed class strength. Coppers were quiet and irregular. Little was done in auto accessory stocks and they ruled weak. Atlas Tack sold at its highest since listed on this exchange. It had lost its advance at the end, however.

Among issues to close with point or more gains were New England Telephone, Swift International, International Corporation and Eastern Steamship common. Fractionally higher issues included Libby, Swift & Co., American Telephone, East Butte, New Cornelia, New Haven, National Leather, Elder, Connor Company and Walworth.

Eastern Steamship preferred ended with a point loss, while smaller recessions were made by Calumet & Arizona, Davis Daly, Ventura, Eastern Manufacturing, Ohio Body, Gray & Davis and Waldorf.

CURB OILS ARE LOWER.

The Curb was fairly active for a week-end session, and there was nothing definite about its trend. High-priced oils were weak as a group and the silvers were off as rule. Back Hawk was an active issue and recovered half of yesterday's loss. Beacon Chocolate sold ⅛ lower at 10c.

Gains at the close included Allied Oil 2 cents at 45 cents, Arizona Extension 1 cent at 7 cents, Black Hawk 9 cents at 79 cents, Gadsden 5 cents at 90 cents, and Seven Metals 2 cents at 15 cents.

Among declines were Gillilan 1 at 40, White Oil ½ at 30, Arizona Silver 1-16 at 1, Arizona Tip Top 2 cents at 18 cents, Mutual Trust 6 cents at 48 cents, and Boston and Wyoming Oil 3 cents at 83 cents.

BOSTON FINANCIAL NOTES.

Boston banks and the Stock Exchange will be closed on Monday as Patriot's Day is a legal holiday in Massachusetts. But the New York Stock Exchange will be doing business as usual.

Shares of the Southern Phosphate Corporation will be listed on the Boston Stock Exchange.

The fifteen cars of ore shipped from the Superior and Boston property in March are reported to have averaged 6 per cent. in copper and to have produced more than thirteen ounces of silver to a ton.

Beacon Chocolate Company stock, offered by Richardson, Hill & Company at the par value of $10 a share, are tax exempt in Massachusetts and exempt from the normal Federal tax.

The bulk of trading on the Boston Stock Exchange is in newly listed stocks. The value of the enlarged list, if an active local market is desired, is very apparent.

Copper Mining Reports

For 1919 the Ray Consolidated Copper Company reports net profits of $1,666,271, equivalent to $1.06 a share, compared with $3.05 for the previous year and $6.60 a share for 1917.

The Chino Copper Company shows net profit from 1919 operations of $1,301,797, equivalent to $1.50 per share, compared with $4.65 per share in 1918.

The report of the Nevada Consolidated Copper Company for 1919 shows net profits of $1,225,357, equivalent to $.60 per share against $1.70 per share earned in 1918, $4.97 per share in 1917 and $7.76 per share in 1916.

Butte and Superior's 1919 net profits amounted to $864,989, or to $2.98 a share after depreciation and depletion.

The Alaska Gold Mines Company reports for last year show a deficit of $273,397 before interest and depreciation.

BIBLE STUDENTS

Another Great Bible Lecture

THE GOLDEN AGE At Hand

By C. A. WISE of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Waldorf Theatre

Sunday, April 18

3 P. M.

Poets, sages and philosophers in the past have waxed eloquent on the fact that some day and in some manner the ideal condition for mankind would come into existence on this earth of ours. If viewed from the outward appearances today it would have to be conceded that the fulfilment of their desires seem remote. On the other hand, these times of sore perplexity and trial are but just the vivid signboard, foretold in Bible prophecy, announcing the birth, even though in bitter travail, of the new idealistic conditions. We are positively sure you would like to know more about these things, especially from the Scriptural standpoint. Make it a point to hear this lecture. Seats are free and no collections taken.

ASSOCIATED BIBLE STUDENTS, at 3 Joy st. (near the State House), Sunday, April 18, at 3 and 5:30 p. m. Pastor E. J. Pritchard of Lawrence will speak; topic, 3 p. m.: "A MARVELOUS RIVER AND WONDERFUL TREES;" topic, 5:30 p. m.: "WHAT IS GOD'S WILL FOR US." All welcome; no collection.

City and Out-of-Town Service BOSTON - - - BROOKLINE

United States Worsted Company

157 Federal Street, Boston, Mass.

April 13, 1920.

In order to carry out the wishes of the stockholders as expressed by their vote at the special meeting held on April 10, 1920, the Directors at a meeting held on April 13, 1920, passed the following vote:

"Voted, that all shares of the Company's second preferred stock which may be offered, on or before June 10, 1920, for exchange into common stock now held in the Treasury for that purpose (in accordance with the stockholders' vote passed March 21, 1914), be accepted and held in the Treasury for cancellation at some future time, and that ten shares of common stock be issued in exchange for each share of second preferred stock so offered, to the persons thereto entitled, and that the common stock transfer books be closed from the close of business on June 10, 1920, to the opening of business on June 16, 1920."

The par value of second preferred stock is $100.00 per share. The par value of common stock is $10.00 per share. Each outstanding share of second preferred stock can be exchanged for ten shares of common stock and, if the exchange is made prior to the close of business on June 10, 1920, the stockholder will be entitled, on June 15, 1920, to a stock dividend of five shares of common stock. Should a second preferred stockholder fail to exchange his stock into common stock on or before June 10, 1920, he could not participate in the stock dividend.

No dividend will be paid on second preferred stock until after the stock dividend has been paid to common stockholders, and it is, therefore, suggested that those desiring to exchange their stock for common stock do so at an early date.

In order to make the exchange it will be necessary to send your stock certificates to the Old Colony Trust Company (Transfer Department), 16 Court Street, Boston. The certificates should be endorsed for transfer to the United States Worsted Company, and should be signed by the owner exactly as his or her name appears on the face of the certificate.

CHANNING W. SOUTHER, Treasurer.

EDITORIAL PAGE OF THE BOSTON AMERICAN APRIL 17, 1920 BOSTON.

MEASURES THAT WOULD CURE MOST OF THE TROUBLES AND TENDENCIES WHICH DISTRESS AND ALARM US TODAY

(1) To nominate for the Presidency by direct nomination and to elect by popular vote.
(2) To elect the Cabinet officers and make them responsible to Congress.
(3) To deprive the President of the power of patronage; to put all public offices as nearly as possible under Civil Service, and have appointments made by a committee of Congress.
(4) To elect Federal Judges, including the Supreme Court Justices, by popular vote.
(5) To apply the Initiative, the Referendum and the Recall to national matters.

Mistakes to Avoid in Fixing the Bonus Payments

The various sub-committees of the Ways and Means Committee of Congress are now considering the form and the amount of the soldiers' bonuses which are to be paid.

If it is to be cash, the method of payment should be made as simple and as swift as possible.

If land, it should be given to them under conditions which will insure prompt possession, right of immediate use, and ownership within a reasonable time.

If aid in finding a home, the terms of payment, possession and final ownership should accord with the national spirit of generosity and justice in which the Hearst papers advocated six months' pay to every honorably discharged soldier. This should have been accorded long ago.

If the bonus is to be in the form of Government bonds, extended vocational opportunities, or increased compensation for the disabled, actual enjoyment of the benefits intended should not be delayed a moment longer than will be required by the observance of sane, simple and prudent regulations.

If the average American citizen finds himself puzzled and confused in filling out his income tax return in order to PAY the Government money, the average service man will find himself distracted if not utterly bewildered when he comes to the point of GETTING money, land, or other aid from the Government—unless due consideration is given to the forms and procedure to be adopted in payment or settlement to the proposed bonus.

The original discharge of the soldier, sailor or marine, or a certified copy thereof, and a signed statement by the applicant giving his present address ought to be the only papers required for collection of a cash bonus. The discharge tells all the history of enlistment and service that is needed.

Of course, 4,500,000 individuals could not be paid at once. But with the experience gained in the payment of the $60 bonus, authorized in the Act of February 28, 1919, and provision for increased personnel in the offices of the disbursing agencies of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps, payment could easily be made at the rate of 75,000 to 100,000 checks per day.

Again, the Act itself ought to be clear and specific as to those entitled to its benefits, and definite as to the period and character of the service to be rewarded.

The question as to what constitutes "service" in the "Military and Naval forces," and what constitutes discharge "under honorable conditions" should not be left to Treasury officials, as was done in the $60 act.

Seventeen separate classes of service under rulings by the Treasury officials were held to be not within the meaning of the Act, and payment of the bonus was consequently denied individuals within those classes. The vagueness of the Act necessitated interpretation by officials. This breeds delays, uncertainty, and creates in many cases a sense of wrong and injustice.

Congress itself is the sole judge of the service to be rewarded, and should define the classes of beneficiaries in the Act itself.

Do You Lie Awake at Night?

When Shakespeare conjured out of his great intellect the characters of Macbeth and his Lady, he could think of no greater punishment to inflict upon them for their misdeeds than to rob them of sleep:

> Sleep that knits up the ravell'd sleave of care,
> The death of each day's life, sore labour's bath,
> Balm of hurt minds, great nature's second course,
> Chief nourisher in life's feast,

But many men and women who have done nothing wrong, and who know no reason for it, fail occasionally, sometimes for long periods, to sleep soundly.

Some are foolish enough, under such circumstances, to resort to drugs, seeking to remove the effect rather than mend the cause.

Insomnia is so common, and there is so much needless alarm over its temporary discomforts, that the editors of Good Housekeeping devote a special article to it in the current number, which every man or woman who does not sleep soundly should read.

It is not probable that anybody ever died from lack of sleep unless it happened to be a complication of some fatal disease.

A great many people suffer from imaginary insomnia when they really sleep soundly. They practically dream that they are awake.

However, it is what you THINK quite as much as what really IS that affects your health and your happiness, so that if you think you do not sleep you are just as uncomfortable and the effects are just as painful as if you really stay awake.

H. Addington Bruce, who writes the article in Good Housekeeping, analyzes the causes of sleeplessness and tells you some of the simple and avoidable reasons for lying awake.

He tells you, too, some of the simple ways to go to sleep. Why to do this and why not to do that.

For instance he says, "Don't try to go to sleep by counting." It requires concentration of thought, and concentration kills sleep.

Kant, the great philosopher, was an insomniac because of sufferings from the gout. His custom was to take some word wholly unrelated to his thoughts, like "Cicero," and then allow his mind to ramble along the lines which the chosen word suggested. He found this effective, and Mr. Addington presents other equally interesting and efficacious methods.

Be sure of one thing, if you are troubled with sleeplessness, do not take drugs.

Depend on yourself and nature.

David, in his wonderful poems in the Psalms wrote: "He giveth His beloved sleep." We are all His beloved, and His gift of sleep is for everyone. All that is needed is to learn how to avail themselves of the gift. The purpose of the Good Housekeeping article is to teach you.

More Truth Than Poetry

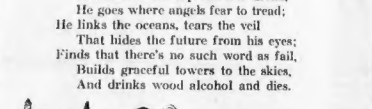
Man, the Master of Creation

By S. E. KISER

HOW wonderful is man! He learns
The deepest secrets Nature hides,
The mighty river's course he turns,
He smooths the mountain's rugged sides,
And in a horseless wagon rides.
He turns the lightning to his use,
He navigates the spacious air,
He shakes the hill's foundations loose,
And still has moments of despair
Because he cannot keep his hair.

HE shoots a hundred miles and needs
No match to turn night into day;
He walks the ocean's floor, he reads
The story of the Milky Way;
He tames the roaring beast of prey.
He maps the moon, he weighs the sun,
Foresees the coming of the gale,
Improves the work that God has done,
And goes dejectedly to jail
Because some vamp gets on his trail.

HE speaks across the gulfs of space,
The desert that was bare and dead
He makes a flowery, fruitful place;
Absolved from superstitious dread,
He goes where angels fear to tread;
He links the oceans, tears the veil
That hides the future from his eyes;
Finds that there's no such word as fail,
Builds graceful towers to the skies,
And drinks wood alcohol and dies.



IT'S A HARD LIFE

One of the movie actors says his clothes cost $6,000 a year. He must find it necessary to have two or three suits.

Ye TOWNE GOSSIP

Registered U. S. Patent Office.

By K. C. B.

EVERYWHERE.
THERE WERE little tin boxes.
AND EACH had a slot.
AND BY the box.
WAS A printed plea.
THAT I drop a coin.
FOR A monument.
THAT WAS to rise.
SOMEWHERE IN France.
TO MARK some spot.
WHERE SOLDIERS fell.
AND THE monument.
WAS TO be a gift.
FROM AMERICA.
TO HER sister France.
AND I read the plea.
AND FELT no thrill.
AND DROPPED no coin.
AND WENT away.
AND WONDERED why.
AND ASKED myself.
IF IT could be.
THAT I had changed.
FROM THE yesterdays.
WHEN THERE was war.
AND THE tramp of feet.
ON CITY streets.
AND THE blare of bands.
THAT LED them on.
DREW CHEERS from me.
AND TOUCHED my purse.
AND DIMMED my eyes.
AND I didn't know.
IF I had changed.
AND THE next day came.
AND THERE came a friend.
AND HE led me away.
TO A little town.
AND A great frame place.
WHERE SOLDIERS were.
AND THEY were those.
WHO HAD been there
SOMEWHERE IN France.
AND HAD come back home.
WITHOUT THEIR youth.
AND WITHOUT their strength.
AND THEY sat there.
AS PRISONERS sit.
WHEN HOPE has gone.
AND FUTURE days.
ARE DARKENED days.
AND WHERE they are.
THERE IS no band.
TO WAKEN them.
FROM OUT their dreams.
AND NO crowds come.
AS THEY once came.
WHEN CAMPS were full.
AND THERE was war.
AND TO their ears.
THERE COME no cheers.
AS WE went through.
AND MARCHING feet.
ARE DRAGGING feet.
AND THEY make things.
THAT THEY would sell.
AND NO one comes.
WHILE WE drop coins.
FOR MONUMENTS.
SOMEWHERE IN France.
AND COMING home.
I ASK again.
IF I have changed.
SINCE YESTERDAY.

I THANK you.

Party Considerations Must Take Back Seat, Says Bryan

POLITICAL party considerations, while decisive in ordinary years, lose their force in the presence of national crises and must be relegated to the background at the coming national conventions, says William Jennings Bryan in a special pre-convention article which appears in tomorrow's Boston Sunday Advertiser.

The article, first of a series of important resumes of the political situation, discusses the issues of the day in their relation to the Presidential campaign, and appears under the general heading "Let the People Rule."

The cost of living, profiteering, the position of labor and other vital subjects are taken up in a masterly fashion by Mr. Bryan. Labor, he declares, will oppose any effort to shunt it aside, and it will be difficult to persuade the laboring man that his interests should be made subordinate to an academic discussion, indefinitely prolonged, and the workingman will claim his place in the nation's plans.

"It is time to change the Constitution, by constitutional means, so that it will be in harmony with the ideals of today," declares the former Secretary of State. The constitutional requirement of a two-thirds vote for ratification of treaties has obstructed the path toward peace, and "enabled a minority in the Senate to defeat the will of the majority," he says.

Edward F. McSweeney continues, in tomorrow's Boston Sunday Advertiser, his exposure of the influences which, he says, are corrupting American citizenship at its source through the medium of textbooks used in the schools.

In a former article Mr. McSweeney replied to an editorial printed in a Boston newspaper asking that he point out specific instances of anti-American propaganda appearing in school histories. This Mr. McSweeney did, naming books and chapters to support his statements.

Tomorrow's article will deal with the broader question of the influences which Mr. McSweeney declares are behind the publication of these textbooks—the motives, personalities and purposes which he says are attempting to bring about the "subversion of American liberty."

Gardner W. Pearson, former adjutant-general of the State of Massachusetts, declares that Massachusetts and the nation must be prepared for the next war, and advocates a system of physical education for the youth of the land which will bring about this preparation.

The war is not over, he declares, and talk of peace is futile with a dozen conflicts eating the heart out of Europe. He points to the Russian Bolshevik menace, which, he says, in combination with the remnants of Austrian and German strength, could conquer Europe.

A Chino-Japanese-Indian combination, he asserts, is even more dangerous in prospect, and could threaten the life of the North American continent. His article appears in tomorrow's Boston Sunday Advertiser.

"The next war will be between continents," writes Maximilian Harden, the German editor, in tomorrow's Boston Sunday Advertiser. He points to a crisis which he believes is developing in the affairs of nations, following the war, and gives what he believes to be the real thoughts of the governments of England, Japan and Germany in regard to the world's future.

Japan is watching England, and Germany is watching [illegible], Harden declares, with the belief that might is right and that strength will prevail over rhetoric. Germany's ideals continue to be those of Prussian Sparta, he asserts.

"The spirit of George Washington protests that this crisis must not develop," Harden concludes.

Sir Auckland Geddes, newly appointed ambassador to Washington from the Court of St. James, says in a signed article that his mission is to bring about a better understanding between the people of the two nations.

"Americans and Englishmen don't understand each other, but let's do our best," he writes. "America is something most Britons have not begun even faintly to picture, but, after all, both have the same ideals, and they qualify the two peoples to respect each other."

A tiny organism which grows on the teeth and tonsils causes more insanity than all other causes put together, declares Dr. W. H. Ballou, who has investigated reports on this great discovery of Professor Henry A. Cotton, director of the New Jersey State Hospital. Fourteen apparently hopeless cases of insanity have been cured by the removal of diseased parts, the doctor reports.

EUROPE EAGER FOR TOURISTS

Delay in Arrival of Rich Americans Causes Anxiety to Innkeepers and Others

By L. R. Murdoch,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, April 17.—While London and Paris hotels are yearning for the hundreds of thousands of American visitors upon whom the English and French are relying to pay the interest on the war debts, the English landlords, real estate agents and others are rubbing their hands and licking their chops in greedy anticipation of the American "influx." The "influx," which was advertised to begin before this time, has not yet "influxed," and the more pessimistic are beginning to show evidences of dismay.

This is supposed to be "the greatest year in history" for recurrents of income from the American tourist trade, owing to its being the first year when it was supposed Americans would resume the old custom of coming to Europe for their vacations, with the added incentive of seeing the battle-torn Continent for the first time without undue hardship.

But Europe is still ill prepared to receive great numbers of American visitors inclined to recreation and cannot even guarantee the shipping necessary to bring them.

Accommodations Inadequate

Only one of the super-liners, the Mauretania, is in commission, the others being at the bottom of the sea or in dock for much-needed repairs. At this writing, one line is tied up by a strike, and other passenger ships are in more or less distressed condition owing to overuse. The ships in service are inadequate to carry promptly even the passenger traffic from this side to America, immensely smaller than the potential traffic from America here.

There is, also, constant danger of delays from strikes and other adverse circumstances. Moreover, there is constant pressure on the ships carrying European flags because the American ships are "dry."

In Europe, the continent is still in a state of social seething, things generally being more uncertain than during war-time, when one at least knew where he couldn't safely go—and if he didn't know there were plenty of soldiers and other guardians to keep him from going.

Nowadays, a revolution is ready to start almost anywhere without notice; and, if not a revolution, a strike—which is the next best thing in respect to possible violence and, at the least, disrespect for one's personal comfort. One's flag is unlikely to protect one nowadays—not even so much as in war-times—because disturbers of the existing order of things do not care very much about flags any more than they care about any other emblems of authority.

Moreover, food and fuel are still short, or at least uncertain of proper distribution, and assured comfort is uncertain, or likely to be at a premium even if obtainable.

Gamble for Tourists

These things must have trickled into the American understanding—and, if not, they ought to—and this doubtless accounts for the delay of the American "influx."

Americans who come to Europe this Spring and Summer will come on a gamble. If they reach England they are likely to find plenty to eat—at a price—and very likely to find the same in France, Belgium and Holland—at a greater price. Then again something may happen to spoil even that. However, the gamble is in their favor in the countries mentioned. But in the other countries of Europe (except Scandinavia) the gamble is the other way—very, very much the other way.
